U.S. TROOPS MOVE INTO PLANE PLANT AS STRIKERS STAGE RIOT

Allied Columns Close In On Damascus

Armored Units Charge Beirut

British, Free French Within 40 Miles Of Two Capitals as British Ships Bomb Tripoli; Tyre Seized.

BULLETIN

CAIRO—(INS)—Rushed into action in an effort to stem the British-Free French advance in Syria, 140 German parachutists, including a colonel, were reported captured today by Allied troops.

(By Associated Press)

British and "Free French" mechanized columns, striking across ancient battlefields where the Crusaders fought the Saracens, were reported today to have advanced within 40 miles of Damascus, capital of French-ruled Syria, and also within 40 miles of Beirut, capital of Lebanon.

General Henri Dentz, commander of Syria's defense forces, declared bloody fighting was in progress.

The French high command said French troops were fiercely resisting their former British allies along the Syrian-Lebanese frontier, destroying several armored cars and shooting down two RAF warplanes.

A French communique said the RAF again bombed air fields at Damascus, at Aleppo and at Levaya.

It was not immediately clear whether France would declare war on Great Britain. In Berlin, a Nazi spokesman said the question of German's ultimate action could not be discussed.

British warships, supporting the land invasion which began at 2 a. m. Sunday, were reported in action along the Syrian coast, shelling the port of Tripoli, terminus of a pipeline from Iraq's great Mosul oil fields, and bombarding other coastal points.

Dispatches from Jerusalem said Allied forces, which Vichy estimated at 20,000 strong, were driving across the broiling desert and into the mountains of the French-Levant states from Palestine and trans-Jordan and were pushing back the French armies of 45,00 men wherever they met.

Three Allied columns were reported in action.

1. From trans-Jordan, one force was said to be marching through the land of the war-like Druses in Jebel Ed Druz toward Damascus. A German radio report said

BLITZ: Allies Get Mixed 'Welcome' In Drive On Syria

WITH THE BRITISH AND FREE FRENCH FORCES, Advancing Into Syria—(Via Jerusalem)—Town after town fell into the hands of British and Free French troops "blitzing" their way into Syria and Lebanon today in an "all-out" effort to break a threatening Nazi grip on the Middle East.

Allied troops pouring across the northern border of Palestine struck simultaneously for Beirut and Damascus.

At points, some opposition was encountered, but at many others followers of General Charles De Gaulle, Free French leader, had paved the way for British occupation. Information reaching this correspondent indicated early capture of strategic Damascus by a heavy but fast-moving British armored column.

The Allied forces faced and overcame various types of military obstacles in their fast advance. Some, following the coastal route, had to swing tanks and armored cars over treacherous mountain roads where ambush was an ever-present danger.

Others shot across arid desert country, putting to the test the efficacy of fast movement by motorized detachments under a blazing sun. Information reaching this correspondent before I left Cairo for Jerusalem to join the attacking forces was that a similar test would come shortly between British and German tank detachments on the Egyptian desert.

SLAIN: Second Air Raid On Alexandria Claims 500 Toll

(By United Press)

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt—At least 500 persons were killed or wounded Saturday night in a five-hour bombing of this main British base in the eastern Mediterranean, officials estimated today. The number killed far exceeded the death toll of 150 civilians killed in a raid last Wednesday night. (A Cairo report said from 200 to 300 were killed and an equal number injured in Alexandria Saturday night.)

Many parts of Alexandria lay in ruins today, but an inspection showed little damage to military and naval areas. The force of the raid—there were three separate attacks—however, had its effect on the civil population. An estimated 50,000 persons streamed out of the city Sunday, carrying household furnishings and personal belongings in goat carts, trucks and cabs. Some went by motorcycle and bicycle.

In addition to raining down incendiary and explosive bombs, the raiders used siren-equipped planes and "screaming shells" to terrify the population.

At 10:40, two squadrons comprising about 40 planes flew over, dropping bombs on civilian areas, but apparently attempting to concentrate on the naval works in the harbor.

The first attack lasted until 1:20 a. m. Sunday. An hour later a larger squadron comprising at least 50 planes attack, concentrating on the harbor area and defense positions on the outskirts of the city. From then on until 5:20 a. m., German Junkers 88's and Heinkels rained bombs incessantly. Numerous buildings in the center of the city, far from military objectives, were destroyed.

A third attack was confined to the docks. At least two docks were set afire by incendiary bombs after which the raiders dumped high explosives. Workers quickly extinguished the flames, however, and the explosion damage was slight.

Army Takes Over Struck Plane Plant

On orders of President Roosevelt, the army took over the plant of the North American Aviation company in Inglewood, Cal., today after striking CIO workers had refused to return to work, as the president had demanded. Strikers and police skirmished at the plant gates before the troops arrived, bayonets fixed, but the picket lines fell back as the army marched into the plant. The picture shows strikers and pickets milling about the gates of the plant, which has nearly $200,000,000 in military plane orders for U. S. and Britain. The CIO workers had demanded a wage increase, and refused to return to work pending negotiation of their demands.

PLANE MISSING OVER MOUNTAINS

Army Bomber With Six Aboard Unreported on Flight Across Rockies.

(By International News Service)

SALT LAKE CITY—A twin-motored army bomber which winged its way into a thunderstorm above the Rocky mountains was missing with six men aboard today on a flight from Salt Lake City to Chicago.

Unreported since it took off from the fifth air base early yesterday afternoon, the huge ship—a B-18 Douglas—was feared down in the mountains between here and Rock Springs, Wyo.

The craft, piloted by Capt. D. N. Motherwell, commandant of the 12th Reconnaissance squadron at Boise, Ida., was due at Chicago at 9:05 o'clock last night (MST). It took off at 3:34 p. m. (EST) with fuel enough for approximately 10 hours of flying.

The federal weather bureau at Denver reported storm conditions above the mountain areas of eastern Utah and western Wyoming. United Air Lines schedules were cancelled by the storm.

Some of the peaks which the plane had to cross on its eastward flight are more than 13,000 feet high.

Also aboard the bomber, it was reported at the Fifth Air base, were Lieut. T. F. Holsteen, Lieut. J. V. Gallagher, Lieut. L. T. Harvey and Staff Sergeants Hawley and McGuran.

SNEEZES CAUSE LOSS OF WEIGHT

Girl Loses 29 Pounds, Attacks Continue at Interval.

TOLEDO —(U.P.)— A prolonged sneezing attack has cost 18-year-old Irene Kerekes of Curtice, 20 pounds since last Thursday.

Miss Kerekes, when released yesterday from the hospital, weighed only 98 pounds. The sneezing attacks are continuing at short intervals.

Cleveland and Chicago specialists have examined the girl, who was employed as a maid in the home of Mrs. William H. Freer of Curtice. Miss Kerekes was affected after smelling peonies in the yard of the Freer home.

DUE JUNE 15

Collector Warns of Deadline For Income Tax Payments.

Quarterly income tax payments will be due June 15, C. L. Wentz, deputy internal revenue collector in Mansfield, said today. Taxpayers will receive through the mail billings showing the tax charge, the last amount paid and the unpaid balance.

Wentz warned the receipt, form No. 1123, should be attached to a check or money order before mailing to the Cleveland office of internal revenue.

Payments may also be made at the internal revenue office in the Mansfield postoffice, Wentz said.

Quarterly payments are made in March, June, September and December.

BOOST LONG TO RUN FOR MAYOR

Democratic Sentiment Swings To Former Sheriff as Primary Candidate.

Democratic sentiment for the selection of a mayoralty candidate to run at the August primaries today started a pronounced swing toward E. P. Long, former Richland county sheriff.

With the deadline for filing petitions falling Friday, Democrats so far are without a candidate. Mayor William J. Locke has already announced he will be a candidate for re-election subject to the Republican primaries.

Although Long has made no statement and has not taken out a petition yet, political leaders believe that he would accept the nomination if assured of the support of the party.

John C. O'Donnell, chairman of the Democratic executive committete, who announced earlier that the committee would maintain a "hands off' policy, is expected to call an informal meeting this week of party heads to discuss the party's slate of candidates.

BLOWS WINDOWS FROM TENEMENTS

Second Bombing Reported In Packing Firm Strike.

CINCINNATI —(INS)— The second bombing in the two-weeks-old E. Kahn & Sons company strike, in which AFL unionists are demanding union recognition, blew out the windows of five tenement houses.

No one was injured by the blast on the front steps of an employe's home. Police said the bomb apparently was a charge of black powder.

The first blast occurred Friday in the yard of a strike negotiator.

GALION YOUTH KILLED, TEN DIE IN STATE

Automobile Ditched After Tire Lets Loose; Two Others Injured in Mishap.

BROTHER, SISTER HURT

Mansfield Free of Accidents Over Week-End; 2 Escape In Crash Near Ontario.

The Mansfield area contributed one fatality to the toll of 11 persons meeting death in traffic accidents in the state over the week-end.

Cecil Eugene Smothers, 17, Galion, was killed instantly when he was thrown from an auto in a crash, following a tire blow-out yesterday noon six miles south of Galion. Two of the youth's companions were injured in the accident which occurred on State Route 61, when an automobile, driven by Fred Northrupp, 28, of Galion, skidded, blew a tire and left the highway.

The auto struck an embankment on the left side of the road, bounced back on the road and came to a stop headed in the opposite direction.

State highway patrolmen reported that the Smothers youth was thrown to the pavement. Northrupp was hurled into the back seat from the driver's seat and suffered a severe laceration above the right eye and a fractured collar-bone.

Teresa Northrupp, 16, sister of the driver, received a collar-bone fracture and a leg injury. Both she and her brother were treated by a Galion physician and taken to their home.

The trio was on the way to Columbus to attend a baseball game.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Harold Williams of Galion,

5,000 KILLED

Hungarians Report Deaths as Munitions Wagons Blow Up.

BUDAPEST—(U.P.)—The Hungarian press reported today that approximately 5,000 persons were killed or wounded in an explosion of 90 wagons laden with munitions at the old Smederovo fortress, near Belgrade, last Thursday.

(Radio Moscow, heard in London, quoted Budapest reports as saying that at least 1,000 persons had been killed and two-thirds of the town of Smederovo, 35 miles east of Belgrade, were killed.)

(Informed Nazi quarters in Berlin confirmed that there had been an explosion, but said they had no details.)

600 Soldiers Bare Bayonets On FDR Order

Pickets 'Welcome' Army With Banner After Tear Gas Fails to Get Workers Past Gate; Colonel Takes Control of Factory.

(By United Press)

INGLEWOOD—Acting under orders from President Roosevelt the army today took over the struck North American Aviation plant after police had used tear gas in a futile effort to move enough workers through picket lines to permit resumption of airplane production.

Within an hour after President Roosevelt signed an order in Washington for the army to commandeer the factory, Col. Charles E. Branshaw, U. S. army air corps, formally took charge of the sprawling plant.

The colonel was backed up by some 600 soldiers with bared bayonets and steel helmets.

One picket suffered a flesh wound in his thigh in a scuffle with the soldiers. He said that a soldier "stabbed me with his bayonet."

Col. Branshaw, in a formal statement, appealed to all "law abiding" citizens of the community to assist him in putting the factory back to work and said that he intended to see that all workers who wanted to work would be allowed to do so.

"Effective immediately the plant will be opened for work under government control," he said.

The troops arrived in big six-wheeled trucks and tiny "jeeps" from Alandra Park at Compton, Calif., six miles away, where they had awaited the president's order since dawn.

The pickets, meantime, brought up a large banner, with paint still wet, which said:

"Welcome U. S. Army to 70 and 10."

This was a reference to the fact that the strikers were demanding a 75 cents an hour minimum wage for beginners, plus a 10 cents an hour raise for all 12,000 workers in the plant.

Soldiers who came to the main employes' gate were heckled by a huge crowd, mostly men, but with a sprinkling of women.

The fully-equipped soldiers were calm under the barrage of taunts such as "what do you

ORDERS ARMY TO GUARD WORKERS

FDR Directs Full Military Protection For Men Who Go Back To Jobs.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt today ordered the army to take over the strike-bound North American Aviation company plant at Inglewood, Calif., to provide full military protection for all workers desiring to return to their jobs, and to operate the plant.

The president directed the army to protect returning workmen at their homes, as well as at their jobs and in passing the picket line around the plant.

The president acted under his powers as commander-in-chief of the U. S. armed forces after consultation with his cabinet, defense agencies, and Sidney Hillman, associate director of the office of production management.

Acting at Mr. Roosevelt's specific instructions, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson placed a long-distance telephone call from the White House, ordering the army to move in.

Patterson talked to Lieut. Col. Charles E. Branshaw, army technician in charge of aircraft production in southern California.

At Mr. Roosevelt's side when he issued the order were lend-lease Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, Hillman, Patterson, and Stephen T. Early, White House secretary.

The president acted only after he had been told by telephone that Los Angeles police no longer were able to cope

Calls On City To Display Flags In Week's Observance

Mansfielders today were called upon to display the American flag this week in observance of Flag Week, which will be climaxed Saturday by the nationally observed Flag Day.

Flag day will mark the 25th birthday of the national observance.

J. Leo Hartman, appointed chairman of Flag Week observance by Mayor William J. Locke, has asked the cooperation of stores, factories and institutions not only during the week but especially on Flag Day, Saturday.

Flag day was nationalized by a proclamation of President Wilson May 30, 1916, setting June 14 as Flag Day.

"Mansfield citizens share the great American heritage of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness which the flag symbolizes," Hartmann said, "and Flag Day presents to Mansfielders, as American citizens, an opportunity to honor that heritage by displaying the flag on this special occasion."

CALL 22 MORE

Selective Service Officials Set New Quota For County.

A call for 22 more Richland countians for military training was issued today for June 30, making a total of 141 men summoned from Richland county this month, while three other county youths were ordered to a conscientious objectors' camp in Indiana.

Forty prospective county selectees are scheduled to leave this week, one today and the others Thursday morning. Leaving by bus for Columbus this morning was William Pardon, colored, 823 Bowman street, from Board 2.

The call for June 30 will take eight men from the No. 1 board district, six from No. 2 board, and eight from the No. 3 district.

Under calls already issued, 44 are due to leave June 28 and three on June 23. Those leaving June 23 will be colored men.

The three Richland countians ordered to report to Camp Large, Ind., for conscientious objectors will leave June 26. Only two had been named today. They are William Cox, Mansfield R. D. 4, and Marke Menke, Mansfield R. D. 5, both of the Board 3 district. Seventeen objectors were called from Holmes county.

Night of Fun at Malabar Nets $1,400 for British War Relief

By OLIVE GRESMER

WITH its brilliant Malabar Carnival a thing of the past, the Mansfield chapter of the British War Relief society took a look at the most important thing about it—the profit—and announced today that it had realized about $1,400. Which, in the terms of raising money, is no small accomplishment.

Under a beautiful moonlit sky in a garden setting of spring flowers and tall shrubbery some 750 people enjoyed the many diversions arranged by a tireless group of Mansfield men and women.

A complete sell-out of tickets was announced before the party so the committees were at least sure of $1,000 before festivities began. But as for the party itself, they were not disappointed with the proceeds, for $1,000 more was realized for the entire work of the group. Seventy-eight dollars was turned in for the "tuzzy muzzy" bouquets which were sold by lovely young ladies in formal garden frocks. The Monte Carlo games netted close to $200 and other concessions also showed a profit.

One of the highlights of the evening's entertainment was the auctioning of "Churchill," the amusing little Springer spaniel, donated by Peter

Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Black. The little dog proved to be one of the most popular "concessions" of the party with more than 1,000 bidding for her.

Rooms Like Those In Any Comfortable Home

The several adjoining rooms on the main floor of the Finefrock Funeral Home are just like the rooms that would be found in any comfortably furnished home.

Their advantage is that, since all are devoted to the one purpose of funeral service, there is more available space with complete privacy for the family.

Each year more families are making use of the funeral home. They find it more satisfactory and less trying than when a funeral is held from the family home. It costs no more to hold the funeral here.

than the average of the 4 other largest-selling brands tested—less than any of them—according to independent scientific tests of the smoke itself!

YOU'VE GOT the right answer there, Ralph Flanagan. Camel's slower way of burning means more coolness. More flavor, too, for nothing dulls flavor like excess heat.

And what a treat to a tired smoking taste a cool, flavorful Camel can be . . . how welcome Camel's extra mildness—extra freedom from nicotine in the smoke. Get Camels. For economy and convenience, buy the carton.

It's Ralph Flanagan—swimmer of the world's fastest mile—lighting up that All-American mildness favorite, a slow-burning Camel

THERE's only one Ralph Flanagan—only a limited few who can even give him a good race. But, as a smoker, he's no different from millions of others when he tells you:

"Camel is the cigarette that is extra mild—and has a flavor that doesn't wear out its welcome."

Yes, in every walk of life—in the ranks of the Army and Navy, too—the brand that clicks is the flavorful cigarette that is extra mild with less nicotine in the smoke. Science confirms this advantage of less nicotine (see left, above), but get Camels and smoke out the facts about mildness for yourself.

TROOPS MOVE ON PLANE PLANT AS STRIKERS RIOT

Take Workers Through Gates After Tear Gas Fails To Halt Disturbance.

think this is—Germany—shooting down working men and women."

Soldiers entered the plant shortly before 9 a. m., when about 100 troopers, with bayonets fixed, marched to gate one. The pickets took one long look, parted their lines, and moved back silently, while the troops walked inside.

As soldiers streamed up to the plant, they started moving pickets and spectators away from the gates, jabbing in the ribs those who moved too slowly.

The pickets edged back sullenly, but quietly, while the CIO sound truck patrolled the boulevards, booming:

"Okay boys, move on back. Remember, the army can't build airplanes."

The announcement in Washington that President Roosevelt had ordered the army to take over the struck plant came after violence had broken out when civil authorities attempted to escort workers through the United Automobile Workers picket lins.

Police at first attempted to escort the workers through the lines in hollow square formation with the workers walking inside a protective rank of officers.

But the pickets were marching four-abreast and lock-step and when it became apparent that this method would fail to get enough workers into the plant to resume operations tear gas was resorted to

The strikers tossed some of the bombs back at the police and soon the police and pickets alike were weeping.

A number of workers rushed into the plant before the pickets recovered from the gas and closed their ranks again.

Three strikers were given treatment at CIO headquarters for hand burns, suffered when they threw sputtering tear gas bombs back at the police.

One automobile belonging to a returning mechanic was picked up by a score of pickets and turned around on the highway and the worker drove away. Other returning workers were reported "roughed up a bit" as they were escorted through the picket lines in groups of from two to six

Police Chief Arthur Hohmann said, "we will take anyone into the plant who wants to go in, but very few so far have desired to enter."

The workers who were escorted through the lines by police drove into the company parking lot in approximately 20 automobiles.

From the parking lot they were taken across the street, inside the protection of a moving square of uniformed policemen, and through the picket line in front of the main gate.

The strikers yesterday shouted down a back to work plea made by Richard T. Frankensteen, national director for aviation for the UAW-CIO. Local union leaders encouraged their defiance. UAW-CIO international officials, through Frankensteen, have outlawed the strike, suspended all officers of the North American local and its negotiating committee, and five UAW-CIO international organizers.

The plant, normally producing about 250 fighting, bombing and training airplanes a month for the United States and Great Britain, was closed Thursday to enforce the union's demand for a minimum wage rate of 75 cents an hour, instead of the present 50 cents, and a 10-cents-an-hour raise for all employes. The strike was called while company and union officials were in Washington conferring with the national defense mediation board.

Frankensteen announced that "returning to work today is not strike-breaking."

"This stoppage was caused by the fact that the Communist party is exploiting the legitimate demands of North American workers in order to sabotage the defense program," he said.

"The CIO feels that the just demands of these workers can be achieved speedily without tying up this vital defense plant. . . .

"By authority invested in me by President Philip Murray of the CIO, President R. J. Thomas and the international executive board of the UAW-CIO,all officers and the negotiating committee of local 683 are being suspended from office, and five international representatives have been discharged from the UAW-CIO staff. An administrator will be appointed immediately to handle all local union affairs pending a new democratic election of officers."

Frankensteen said that "the re-enrollment of members into local 683 of the UAW-CIO will begin as soon as possible for all North American and other aircraft workers who are interested in obtaining membership in a clean, democratic, American union."

Local union leaders, headed by Elmer Freitag, sent the following telegram to the White House replying to Mr. Roosevelt's threat to call in troops:

"Bombers can't be built with bayonets and we call upon the government to vindicate the trust of its people. If the army is used to help break our strike it will mean the armed forces of the United States will be subverted to class interests. . . ."

At their mass meeting the strikers passed this resolution:

"This meeting . . . hereby goes on record as fully supporting the report and recommendations of the negotiating committee of the local and gives a full vote of confidence to that committee. We heartily condemn the union-busting activities of Mr. Frankensteen and call upon all other workers and officials of the UAW, as well as of the CIO, to take similar action. We reiterate our position that we are determined to hold our picket lines solid until we win our 75 cents an hour minimum and a 10-cent raise for experienced workers."

NIGHT OF FUN NETS $1,400

Malabar Garden Party Brings In Tidy Sum For Aid of War Sufferers.

hundred people milled about for four or five hours the night before. Bromfield said practically no damage was done to the gardens.

The gardens were really a sight to behold under the bright lights erected for the occasion. From the smallest pansies to the largest flowering bush, color ran rampant and brought forth "ohs" and "ahs" from the guests. There was dancing on a specially-built floor, erected on the tennis courts near the orchard, decorated in red, white and blue. Flags and banners complemented the orchestra background of blue satin with silver stars.

Music was furnished by Tommy Van's orchestra and during the intermission a British subject, Miss Venetia Wills of England, who has been a house guest of the Bromfields, entertained with a tap dance.

Recordings of singing and conversation proved a most attractive diversion and netted a nice profit for the society as the records were auctioned off. Fortune-telling also proved popular with four professionals busy throughout the evening. The unique floral displays arranged for the party by Mansfield Garden club members, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Paul Bovard, brought a tidy sum when they were sold.

There wasn't a hitch to the whole performance, due to the complete and well-arranged cooperation of all groups working on the affair. Mrs. Louis J. Ott, was general chairman Legionnaires in uniform and Boy Scouts handled traffic and parking, with a minimum of confusion. Police, deputy sheriffs and highway patrolmen also were on the job Volunteer concession operators operated with all the skill and aplomb of veteran professionals.

No matter where you turned, there wasn't a dull moment.

Guests came from miles around Among them were Paul Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Motor corporation, and Richard Hutchinson, vice president of the company and his wife, all of South Bend, Ind., Attorney General and Mrs. Thomas J. Herbert of Columbus, Jack Bradshaw and Jack Metcalf of Oberlin, guests of the Bromfields and scores of others.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson were hosts to the Bromfields recently when the author went to South Bend to speak at a large party held for the Chinese War Relief. The Hutchinsons and the Bromfields, who have been friends for many years, were neighbors when both families lived in Europe. At one time Mr. Hutchinson was in charge of the export business for the Studebaker company.

The only sour note to the whole affair wasn't even known to the assembled hundreds. It was the threat, via mail to Cleveland friends, warning Bromfield to cease his activities on behalf of the British, and brought out a special detail of Mansfield police, in plain clothes.

Signs had also been posted earlier in the week attacking the relief effort.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said a detail from his department had been supplied on request of Sheriff Frank Robinson.

Bates said that the police made themselves as inconspicuous as possible and confined their patrol to the house and barns of the Malabar estate to prevent any destruction where it was feared a bomb by anti-British elements.

Help Swell War Relief Fund At Party

Among the diversions at the Malabar Carnival for British War Relief was the recording booth where professionals and amateurs could make a record for a nominal sum. One of the professionals present who contributed his share for the occasion was R. Alex Anderson of Hawaii, who is a house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Tappan, Woodland road Mr. Anderson, author and composer of Hawaiian numbers, sang and played two of his new hits, "Lovely Hula Hands" which was purchased by Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert of Columbus and "The Cockeyed Mayor of the County of Kaunakakai" which Mr. Tappan bought. Mr. Anderson is seen in the top photo with Herbert. Lower photo is of Paul M. Ehot, who was the financial chairman for the affair. Ehot was busily engaged in counting the money when The News-Journal photoghapher snapped him.

HOLD YOUTH IN FATHER'S DEATH

Police Say Boy Struck Parent on Head With Beer Bottle.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— An 18-year-old youth was being held by police today in connection with the death of his father, John Fortuna, sr., 44, who was killed when struck over the head with a beer bottle during an argument.

According to police, Fortuna's son, Frank, 18, had been drinking beer and got into an argument with his mother when she refused to cook some food for him early this morning. The father, a railroad worker, tried to stop the argument.

Police said Fortuna shoved his son, whereupon the boy grabbed the beer bottle and hit him.

ALLIED COLUMNS MARCH TOWARD SYRIAN CAPITAL

Also Approach Beirut as Ships Bomb Tripoli In Triple Middle East Assault.

this column had advanced 25 miles to Soudeida, capital of Jebel Ed Druz, 58 miles south of Damascus.

2. From Palestine, another column was reported knifing toward Beirut north of the Sea of Galilee, attacking the 12th century Crusaders' stronghold of Banias.

3. Still another contingent of British motorized troops was reported advancing up the Euphrates river valley in Iraq toward the big French outpost of Deir-ez-Zor, in eastern Syria.

The French high command said a British naval squadron of a battleship, two cruisers and five destroyers attacked the coast of Lebanon, south of Beirut, and landed small forces armed with sub-machineguns. The landing party was declared to have been captured.

Authoritative London quarters said the Allies had entered the town of Merdjayoun, on the road to Beirut, and also captured Tyre (Sour), on the Lebanese coast. Merjayoun is 40 miles south of Beirut; Tyre is 40 miles southwest of Damascus.

One of the great cities of antiquity, Tyre was once chief mart of the Mediterranean world. Cleopatra wore its fine-spun silks.

A strongly-fortified seaport of ancient Phoenicia, now known as the state of Great Lebanon, the city held off numerous attacks by Assyrians and Babylonians, and withstood a 13-year siege by Nebuchadrezzar

"Free French" quarters in Cairo said the Allied drive into Syria was progressing satisfactorily and that many deserters from the Vichy forces were going over to the Allies

The British acknowledged "some French opposition" to the invasion, which was described as an attempt to forestall German domination of the French Mediterranean colonies and to balk and expected German thrust toward the Suez canal.

The British government, in a formal statement, gave this explanation for the onslaught against Britain's former comrades-in-arms:

"German infiltration into Syria has begun and the Vichy (French) government are continuing to take measures whose effect must be to bring Syria and Lebanon under full German control"

In Vichy, France's old Marshal Philippe Petain bitterly assailed the attack as "profoundly unjust aggression," denied that there were any German troops in the Levant states, and gave the order for a fighting defense.

Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the "Free French" armies, now said to number 40,000 well-equipped troops, has promised independence to the Levant states and as the invasion began, British Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson appealed to the French not to hamper the movement for liberation.

Reports from Vichy asserted the attackers were meeting fierce and bloody resistance along the entire battle line, but a "Free French" broadcast from Brazzaville in French Equatorial Africa said the opposition was scattered.

France emphatically protested the invasion of her mandated territory, through Francois Pietri, French ambassador in Madrid.

The "Free French" proclaimed Syria and Lebanon free and independent and the British, risking an open break with Vichy, backed this up and asserted they intended to clear all German forces out of the French mandate.

General Henri Dentz, leader of the French army in Syria, claimed early success in beating off the British-Free French drive, asserting that a landing party from a Royal navy squadron had been captured, three planes shot down and mechanized units destroyed.

The Allied attack, led by RAF planes, came without warning Sunday morning, accompanied by a heavy diplomatic barrage. Some 20,000 Allied troops were reported facing an army of 45,000 men.

BOOST LONG TO RUN FOR MAYOR

Democratic Sentiment Swings To Former Sheriff as Primary Candidate.

Mitchell, also mentioned for the nomination, has declined to make any comment. Political observers however, said Long it is believed, has the support of the majority of ward leaders.

Glenn Davidson, city treasurer, mentioned as a possible mayoralty candidate, announced today that he would not be a candidate for any office. This left the treasurer's office open on both sides. No Republican or Democrat has filed for this post or for that of city solicitor which M. D. Ward, jr., said he would not seek again.

George Berg, councilman-at-large, has announced that he would seek re-election and was not a candidate for president of council. Howard Miller, incumbent, has filed for president of council. No Republican candidate has been selected for this post as yet.

He was to have entered the senior class of Galion high school next fall.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Nazarene church. Rev. J. C. Leonard will officiate. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery.

Two motorists escaped injury when their cars collided about a hal fmile west of Ontario on State Route 30-S. Alvin Klein, 25, Columbus, and George Corral, 44, Ashland, both told state highway patrolmen that the other was driving on the wrong side of the highway.

In the city, three minor collision were reported but no persons were injured.

Two youths were killed outright in an accident two miles west of Wauseon early today.

The victims were Harold King, 25, of near Wauseon, and Kenneth Yoder, 18, of Archbold. Their automobile left the road at an intersection about 2 a. m. and rolled 250 feet before crashing into a utility pole.

Investigators said their machine apparently went out of control as another automobile approached the intersection.

Other fatalities included:

Salem—Herbert F. Becker, 37, and James Fisher, 33, in over-turning of automobile at curve.

Troy—Donald Morris, 15; motor car struck his bicycle.

Cincinnati—Matthew Harris, 33, walked into side of automobile; William Gilcher, 42, hit by auto.

Youngstown—George Orr, 65, a farm hand, struck by automobile.

Columbus—Carter Darling, 31, in hospital of injuries received when motor car struck him near home at Raymond, Union county; Lloyd Windham, 21, of Belle Center, in collision of two motorcycles and an automobile.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, JUNE 9, 1941.

Why a Bill of Rights?

CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES is a firm believer in the American form of government and its complete workability. He has said:

"The greater the importance of safeguarding the community from incitement to the overthrow of our institutions by force and violence, the more imperative is the need to preserve inviolate the constitutional rights of free speech, free press and free assembly in order to maintain the opportunity for free political discussion, to the end that government may be responsive to the will of the people and that changes, if desired, may be obtained by peaceful means. Therein lies the security of the republic, the very foundation of constitutional government."

These statements were part of an opinion setting aside the conviction of a man for assisting in holding a public meeting in Oregon under the auspices of the Communist party.

Here is not only strong faith in the Bill of Rights, but full understanding of Constitutional government. Democracy must have both to thrive.

Sharing the Oil Supply

THERE is plenty of oil in this country, but in coming months there may be difficulty in getting it where it is needed. The Atlantic coast area is threatened with a shortage next fall, because it lacks pipe lines from the Louisiana and Texas oil fields, and several dozen tank ships formerly engaged in that service have been turned over to war use.

So there are suggestions at Washington for a national plan for sharing the oil and gasoline. It is proposed to put a ban on the Sunday sale of gas for automobiles and to save fuel in oil-heated homes by reducing the temperature five per cent.

There would probably be little kicking about such restrictions on the free and unlimited consumption of oil and gasoline, if the need were carefully explained to the public. People would be likely, of course, to hoard gas during the week for Sunday use, but some saving would result. As for fuel oil, most American homes are said to be overheated, anyway, and a slight reduction in temperature might improve national health. It is also easy, in most cases, to wear warmer clothing.

Forgetful Elephant

THE 44-year-old elephant, favorite of visitors to the Bronx zoo in New York, has been accused of flunking a memory test.

Thirty years ago Alice was taught a trick. She learned to answer a telephone.

The other day her trainer decided to make a test. They hadn't done the telephone trick for many years. He began by putting Alice through a number of other tricks she had not done for 10 years. The big creature was in fine form, did everything correctly, and seemed to be enjoying herself.

Then the trainer walked to an old-fashioned telephone set rigged up on the steel fence. His part of the stunt was to ring the telephone bell. He cranked the handle, raised the earphone to his head and spoke. "Hello. Who? You want Alice? Hold the wire. I'll see if she'll come to the telephone."

That was Alice's cue 30 years ago, but she didn't act upon it this time. She just ignored the whole business. Alice, everybody said, had forgotten.

Maybe Alice really forgot, or maybe she just thought the performance was unnecessary and so refused to have anything to do with it. That's the trouble with such tests. The animal can't explain.

Light vs. Infections

IT MAY well be that the air we breathe indoors, particularly in school rooms, offices, theaters and other public gathering places, will soon be as free from germs carrying infectious diseases as the water and milk that must meet official standards of purity. At any rate, such a prospect is suggested in the report to the American Medical Association convention of two doctors, a husband and wife, who kept down the measles epidemic in Swarthmore and Germantown, Pa., by adding ultra-violet rays to the indoor lighting system. In the experiment in the Philadelphia suburbs, measles was almost eliminated in the lower grades—which usually suffer most—while it continued virulent in the upper grades where the rays were not used.

This method would be a distinct advance over older, individual immunizing processes. It might be of incalculable value in fighting the common cold by more effective prevention than we have known before.

Shift of Pacific Fleet Starts

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — The rumors about U. S. fighting ships coming through the Panama Canal to do their part — scouting and patroling in the Battle of the Atlantic are true. No official information is available, and details could not be printed if known, under the voluntary censorship rulings. But it is not giving Germany any information to say that a large number of vessels of the U. S. navy which have been in the Pacific are now in the Atlantic, and there is no blinking the fact that Berlin knows why they moved.

In fact Berlin probably knows just what ships have been so moved, for there is not a naval officer who does not believe that word is gotten to Germany about every ship, naval or merchant, which passes through the canal, with as much further information as to its destination, etc. as can be obtained by Nazi observers in the Canal Zone.

The really interesting part of the whole business, from a naval standpoint, is that this withdrawal of a number of ships from the Pacific means that the administration is no longer worried about the Far Eastern situation. Conviction is growing here that Japan will make no move against Singapore or the Dutch East Indies in the near future.

Japan has known for some time that there would be plenty of shooting right away if she made such a move. She has known also that the augmented force of big bombers at Manila and Singapore —where the British have been receiving American made bombers for months despite the urgent need for them in Britain and Alexandria—boded no good for her if hostilities should begin.

The importance of this particular threat is that the locations of all the Japanese military oil reserves are well known to both the British and American naval forces, and that it would be a simple matter to destroy them, thus immobilizing the Japanese fleet.

Even since the earthquake of 1922 Japan has not dared to store her naval oil reserves underground. She lost virtually all her oil at that time when the earthquake opened up the underground storage vaults, and she has been afraid to risk it since. Hence her oil reserves are particularly vulnerable to air attack.

Japan has plenty of fighting and bombing planes, but in this war it has been shown that while air power is tremendously important in attack, it is almost impossible to prevent bombing by the enemy no matter how inferior his air strength. Thus, the British have been able to bomb German cities and the French, Belgian, Dutch and German ports almost at will, despite the fact that the Nazi air force has been tremendously superior.

Had Japan moved into the Dutch East Indies immediately after the invasion by Germany of the low countries, the resistance there would have been pitiful. Now it is a different story. The Dutch have moved heaven and earth to provide a defense, so that it would be a real battle. That might not deter the Japanese, but the U. S. and British threat behind it are now believed to be conclusive.

So Japan will wait, hoping that, with German victory, her path to plunder in the Far East will no longer be blocked.

Poison Ivy Remedies

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE ARE in the beginning of the poison ivy season and with so many contradictory pieces of advice going around, it is valuable to study a conservative review of methods of prevention and treatment. I find one which emanates from the Peter Bent Brigham hospital in Boston.

Poison ivy dermatitis has a long history in the United States. There is a clear-cut account of such poisoning suffered by the members of a Spanish expedition in New Mexico, under Governor Valverde, in 1719. In 1748 Peter Kalm, as a result of his travels in New Mexico gave a detailed description of rhus poisoning .

Easily Recognized.

While poison ivy dermatitis is usually easily recognized on account of the sudden appearance on exposed areas of the skin of clear-cut, hard blisters which are painful rather than itchy, the diagnosis should not be made final until a history is obtained because similar eruptions can be caused by the following: iodine, furs, dyes, cosmetics, tar, sulfur, chrysanthemum, primrose, sunflower, celery, tobacco, orange peel (in sensitive people), carbolic acid and formalin.

Protection.

Those who may be compelled to undergo exposure to the plant, such as horticulturists and gardeners, can obtain protection by using an oxidizing agent on the skin, such as potassium permanganate solution, 0.1 per cent, or a 10 per cent sodium perborate ointment in a base of vanishing cream. After the application of the latter, a white deposit is left on the skin.

In the treatment of an established case, no special application can be certainly recommended. One person finds one thing of value and another something else. Among the most popular are potassium permanganate solution, boric acid solution (2 per cent), zinc oxide lotions or calamine lotions. The most dramatic results seem to come from the use of poison ivy extracts given by injection into the muscles.

Extracts Used.

Opinions as to the use of poison ivy extracts in prevention are widely different. This is either by injection into the muscle or taking the extract by mouth.

Some fatalities have occurred from the promiscuous eating of poison ivy leaves and poison ivy fruit, particularly if it is unripe.

I find that eight dermatologists have reported good results from the administration of extracts in the specific treatment and prevention of ivy dermatitis and four who have reported no beneficial effects from this. However, the largest experience seems to indicate that it is always worth trying for those who are repeatedly subjected, season after season, to this painful experience. Whether the extract is given by injection or by mouth, it is imperative that it should be supervised by a physician with experience who knows the strength of the extracts he is using.

TODAY IN HISTORY

June 9—John Howard Payne, dramatist and author of "Home Sweet Home" was born on June 9, 1791, and died at Tunis, in Africa, on April 10, 1852. He was appointed American consul at Tunis in 1841. His ashes were brought to Washington in 1883.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Capital Sleepless as Nation Nears 'War Entry' Crossroads

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—On the surface, Washington today is the gayest capital in the world. Never have its theaters been more crowded, its hotels more jammed, its taxicabs scarcer.

In the cocktail room of the Mayflower hotel you will see huddles of contractors seeking Army-Navy construction jobs; members of the British purchasing mission; One Dollar Men relaxing from discussions of the aluminum shortage and gasless Sundays.

In front of the White House the squirrels were never spryer. Along the Speedway the moon was never brighter. In the gardens of Georgetown the roses were never more gorgeous. And in the fountain between the East Wing of the White House and Henry Morgenthau's Treasury, not even in the days of Andy Mellon were the goldfish sleeker, sleepier, and more contented.

Outwardly Washington is more carefree, more prosperous than ever before.

Beneath the surface, however, is a current of worry—ugly, harassing, disturbing worry. Especially is it prevalent in high places. Cabinet members turn up at staff meetings, tired, pale and silent. They have been working late into the night, and they are full of anxiety.

They are pondering the most decisive crossroads the United States has faced since the Civil War—perhaps in all our history. It is the crossroads of whether to declare war.

The seriousness of the British situation has been known for a long time. But never has it been so graphically and so distressingly painted as by Ambassador Winant, who returned for the express purpose of warning that the driblets of munitions we have been sending Britain would not save her; that speeches would not save her; that nothing would save her except the full force of the American fleet.

"Give Up Or Be Bombed Out."

This is what causes such sleepless nights at the White House. The President knows that the American people do not want war. He knows that the country is not yet prepared for war. Yet he also knows that probably nothing short of a declaration of war will stiffen British morale, give a sufficient shock to German morale, and electrify U. S. labor and industry into patriotic defense production.

He also knows that the decision must come soon. Because Hitler is out to administer the coup de grace to England within six weeks. Because after that American help may be too late. After that the British fleet may be crippled or gone. After that the United States may have the vast reaches of the Atlantic and the Pacific to guard all by itself. After that, finally, the Monroe Doctrine will not be worth the paper it is written on.

That is the reason for the gloom in high places.

The squirrels may frolic on the White House lawn. Lovers may bask in the moonlight along the Potomac. But over the White House hovers the grim realization that as far as bulwarking Great Britain is concerned, it is now or never.

America First.

Privately, some America First generalissimos aren't happy about certain elements attached to their organization.

In fact, the inner command is sharply divided over the question of issuing a formal repudiation of Bundist, Coughlinite, Communist and similar groups which have been very prominent at America First rallies.

John T. Flynn, financial writer and a top America First man, has been demanding that this be done. At the last Lindbergh meeting in Madison Square Garden, Flynn tried to keep large blocks of tickets out of the hands of Fascist elements. When this failed, Flynn took the platform, denounced their presence and asked them to leave.

This brought down on his head the fury of Christian Mobilizer leaders, now gunning for his scalp.

Big obstacle for Flynn and his supporters in their house-cleaning efforts is that they have been unable to get any help from any of the America First platform stars. Also, in several cities, America First branches are dominated by pro-Nazi elements.

Senator Gerald Nye has talked under fascistic auspices; ex-Governor Phil LaFollette has appeared on the same platform with Father Edward Curran of Brooklyn, Coughlinite leader; and Senator Wheeler and ex-Colonel Lindbergh have rebuffed repeated efforts to persuade them to speak out against such groups.

With these top guns either openly or covertly playing ball with the ism crowd, the strictly isolationist faction in America First has made little headway in its purification demands. Whether the issue will lead to an open break remains to be seen.

Ambitious Corcoran.

Tommy Corcoran, famous ex-brain truster, is angling for a high Justice Department post.

With Attorney General Bob Jackson slated to succeed Chief Justice Hughes, and Solicitor General Francis Biddle slated for Jackson's place Corcoran is out for Biddle's job.

This is a change in plans for Tommy, who has been out of the inner circle since last December when he quit the Government to practise law. Corcoran has had his eye on the vacant post of Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air—much to the dismay of Navy brass hats who don't like him.

Corcoran's chances of becoming Solicitor General are doubtful. The White House has been advised that he would have a lot of trouble being confirmed by the Senate. And Roosevelt, needing every ounce of Senate support he can get for his foreign policy, is not going out of his way to start trouble there.

Also there is strong support in New Deal quarters for Charles Fahy, Biddle's high-calibered assistant. A World War ace and top-notch lawyer, Fahy knows the workings of the Solicitor General's office intimately and could take it over without a hitch.

Winged Bloke.

A. R. Glancy, hard-hitting OPM Ordnance chief, tells this story related to him by a British Air Commission official. A British trawler shot down a German Messerschmitt with an old fashioned Lewis Browning gun made 25 years ago, after which the skipper reported to the Admiralty as follows:

"At 11:05 I was fishing on a certain bank. My course was such-and-so, when all of a sudden I spied the dirty blokes acomin' straight at us. I yells down the engine room for more smoke. Just then Charlie comes running forward yelling, 'By cripes, I got the —'

"He had. Resumed fishing at 11:20."

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — The pros and cons of daylight saving haven't changed an iota since the days of flappers, drugstore cowboys, jazz and William S. Hart. The lines forming in congress today over the proposed tinkering with time are just the same as those who fought the measure through to passage in 1918 and repealed it—over President Wilson's veto—in 1919.

Today, just as it was 20-odd years ago, it's a fight between cities and the farms — between agriculture and industry; with national defense and power conservation (for the present) on the side of industry and the cities.

The men who are fighting against universal daylight saving today have not one word to add to the arguments of a generation ago—but those arguments are sufficiently strong to control a huge bloc of votes in the house and senate. I'll try to summarize the cases of both sides.

For the Opposition:

1. Daylight savings add an hour of darkness, instead of daylight, to the farmer's day.

2. Farm children, going a long way to school, have to be routed out by candle-light to get there on time.

3. During haying and harvest, the farmer operates by the sun, because it takes hours for the dew to dry sufficiently for baling or stacking.

4. The part of the standard time day when the sun beats down the hardest is from 12 noon to 1 p. m. and this is the time the farmer and his hands eat. Under daylight saving, he eats at 11 a. m. standard time—or even at 10:30 if he lives midway in the time ozones—thus having to work through the most unpleasant part of the day—after eating. (In some sections, it was claimed, the dew was just off the hay or grain, when it was dinner time and a whole hour of work was lost.)

5. Farmers who ordinarily take their recreation or attend farm meetings after sundown are so late getting home under daylight saving time they lose sleep.

6. Many farm hands refuse to work daylight saving hours, because of reasons listed here.

7. Commuting industrial workers rebel at getting up before dawn to make the day shifts.

8. Mothers, both on farms and in cities, complain that small children cannot be made to go to bed before sundown.

9. The purported saving in fuel (1,000,000 tons of coal, it was claimed in 1918) and electrical power wasn't due to daylight saving at all — but to the government's economy campaigns.

For the Defense:

1. Daylight saving proved a great economic and industrial saving factor in the United States and 12 other nations during the World war.

2. It is more healthful, permitting more daylight working hours (thus easier on eyes and nerves) in industrial centers and permitting all daytime workers in factories and offices to get an extra hour of daylight for recreation.

3. It is working now, with almost complete satisfaction for one-fourth of the people in the United States, and almost every nation at war. It was working 23 years ago to almost complete satisfaction, for the United States and 12 other nations.

5. The farmers whose only argument is a refusal to change their habits a little, are holding out against healthful, industrial and economic benefits which would accrue to the rest of the country.

6. In times of peace, the rest of the country might be happy to make this concession to the farmer's comfort—but in time of emergency, the farmer should be willing to make this sacrifice to proved benefits to industry, labor office workers and conservation.

That's just hitting the high spots and you can reduce any of these reasons to the personal and intimate. In the battle of 1918, when the first law was passed—and the battle of 1919, when it was repealed over presidential veto, congress and public antagonists did just that. They are preparing to do it again. It could well be one of the big congressional battles of 1941.

A Farmer's Diary

Baby Chickens

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT'S late, we know, to start a flock of chicks. We waited long, in the vain hope that electric current would be available for brooding them. When it became apparent that our proposed REA line would be held up by 'priorities for defense' until too late to brood chicks electrically this summer, we improvised a modernistic brooder house from the big rectangular box that our peach trees came in and borrowed a 'tin hen' coal oil brooder from a relative who had it stored away, unused. The feed line leaked, so we had it soldered.

We had ordered 250 English Leghorn pullets. The hatcheryman assured us that they would lay at five months and begin producing top quality eggs before midwinter.

The feed store where I went to purchase growing mash gave me pasteboard feeders. It was raining when we brought the hatchlings home, so we left them overnight in the cardboard pullmans in which they were shipped. Next day, before a shower, I tacked a quick tar paper roof on the big box. (Wonderful stuff, paper.)

My wife had a spell of invention. She hurried to the garage robbed my car of a long piece of rubber hose, and filled a 5 gallon kerosene can with fresh water from the pond. She parked that can of water on top of my new brooder house, stuck one end of the hose into the can and a cork into the other end. Then, with a hairpin, she made a small round hole above the cork. She brought a shallow pan from the kitchen, laid the end of the hose in it and with a grin bade me put my mouth to the end of the tube and start the siphon working. Result —a bubbling fountain for baby chicks. (Make one for yourself—no charge—you're entirely welcome.)

At night we fastened a piece of old carpet, in lieu of a venetian blind along the front. Half inch mesh protected the outer borders. The chicks slept dreamlessly in a downy ring at the edge of the hover.

They have made the best of everything we did for them. They seem to feel much at home. All day they run in and out under the 'tin hen,' drink at the fountain, sleep stretched in the sun. The green bit of lawn that comprises part of their living space furnishes a favorite place to try out wing spread.

They are three days old—there have been no casualties.

We expect, a little later, to allow them to run in the cornfield. Days are warm. They should not need artificial heat much longer. If from 250 pullets we get, by the first of the year, a flock of 200 layers, we shall be satisfied.

Let's Look Around

'Boom Town' Still Mining Gold

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

MARIPOSA, Calif.—This is one of those California small towns that might easily be driven through without noticing—and that would be a mistake, as anyone who lives around here could tell you—for this is one of the places that has been producing gold in considerable quantity ever since it became a "boom town" during the gold rush of 1849—and a majority of the people hereabouts are still making a living, or accumulating wealth, out of the gold mined from surrounding hills.

Four methods of gold mining are in vogue here—placer, dredging, milling and pocket mining. One concern engaged in the milling of quartz has average production of $1,000 worth of gold a day, and following veins for the nuggets sometimes found in "pockets," is still productive of pleasant surprises and rich rewards.

This is in the section of an early land grant of 44,000 acres of California land to John C. Fremont, in a territory rich in production of gold, barium, copper and other minerals, all of which have contributed to the prosperity of later generations of the original gold rushers.

Then, too, Mariposa is the county seat of Mariposa county, in which lies Yosemite Valley, and the tourist flow through this town has become as dependably productive of "gold" as is the earth of the hills which encompass it.

In California anything that isn't the biggest, or the "most unusual," is the oldest, or some other superlative.

So, as John L. Dexter, editor of the Mariposa Gazette, tells us, that newspaper, which was established in 1854, is the oldest in continuous publication in California, and the courthouse (which features an interesting museum) is the oldest in California still in use, having also been erected in 1854.

Native of Mariposa county, Editor Dexter's parents came from the east, his mother having been born in Maine and his father in New York, but his life work has been in associating with this gold-producing community and his newspaper reflects the lively local interest in that subject. Anecdotes and recital of incidents connected with discovery of gold in unexpected places provide material for interesting conversation.

JUST one other thing, before it is too far removed for mention—a success story from the Los Angeles area, more specifically in the vicinity of small Beuna Park, down Santa Ana way. It was a dinner at what is known as "The Berry Place" that revealed a story that, in any other setting, would seem stranger than fiction.

Around twenty years ago a family by the name of Knott acquired a small farm on which they attempted to make a precarious living by raising berries and chickens—but the going was not so good along that line, so they decided that it might be better to turn the berries into pies and the chickens into fries—and sell them that way.

The start was with a small restaurant that accommodated 20 persons, with berry pie as the chief attraction—then chicken dinners.

Growth since then has been constant, with a present capacity of 600, grounds attractively landscaped, and an appeal of moderately priced, well prepared food that brings trade from fifty miles around. It is not unusual for from 3,700 to 4,000 dinners to be served on Sunday, and on special occasions the total goes above 5,000—just because marketing berries and chickens didn't pay.

BUT there's still the big city just ahead—and we can't be stopping at all the small towns along the way, interesting as they may be.

The Secret of the Marshbanks + + +

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER X

"Sit down here a minute," he said, immediately seating himself on the landing's top step. "How's it gone? Had any fun out of it? I've seen you coming and going and didn't know whether it was any fun for you or not. Get your candy?"

"Oh, it was wonderful, Mr. Coates."

"Not your first box of candy, I suppose?"

Cherry was too dizzy to know what she said by the way of reply. She tried to make it grateful. But merely talking to him confused her. The lost evening was suddenly aglow with color and light. She was to have her moment after all!

In her agitation she said exactly what she would have wished not to say. Swallowing hard and with a nervous, quick laugh, she asked, "Didn't . . . didn't Mrs. Marshbanks look lovely tonight?"

For a minute his expression was so odd that she was terrified. He didn't like her saying that! Then he said briefly, "Lovely."

Blundering on, in spite of a half-defined feeling that he would not like to talk about her, Cherry said, "I used to thing she was almost—well, homely. But when you know her face you see that she's beautiful."

He had folded his arms, in a favorite gesture of his, and was looking at her seriously.

"Fran," he said simply. But the word brimmed with some secret magic for him, and she felt its echoes reach her, and was chilled. "The Randalls are taking her home," he added. "I've got to be on my way back to Sausalito. But you—what kind of time have you had?" he asked after a moment.

"Rotten," she said, suddenly hungry for his sympathy and understanding. It was unwise it was impulsive, she knew it, even as the ground slipped away from beneath her feet. "I hate that Amy," she said. "That is, I don't hate her," she amended it, "but she treats me as if I wasn't there—didn't count."

"I suppose so," he conceded with a thoughtful look. "Give it time," he went on, with a little stress on the last words, "give it time. You'll leave Amy behind you some day, and then this will all seem very small-girl stuff. Patience, Cherry."

His use of her name, his serious consideration for her ill-timed outbursts destroyed the last shred of her reticence. She was tired, excited, jealous, lonely; she wanted somehow to hold him, and blindly reached for whatever claim upon his interest she could find.

"No matter what I did," she said, looking down shyly and fingering the ornamental end of one of the brass rods that held the stair carpet in place, "no matter what I did I would never matter to you, I know that! You'd never think of me as anything but a girl from Saint Dorothea's who didn't count—you'd go on falling in love with Mrs. Marshbanks—of course," Cherry floundered on wretchedly. "I know I'll never be like that—dressed that way and playing bridge and all; she's been in Europe—but if I had clothes and money—if my husband was as wonderful as Judge Marshbanks—I couldn't—I know I couldn't . . ."

She stopped in a terrifying silence. She could not raise her eyes. As Kelly got to his feet she rose too, but still she could not look at him.

"I'm sorry," she said thickly, when she could not bear it an instant longer.

"Well!" the man said dryly, on a surprised breath, as she come to a horrified and frightened pause. And forcing herself at last to meet his eyes, Cherry saw that he was smiling, in a sort of annoyed indulgence, as one might smile at a forward child. At the look her soul died within her. Those eyes could never again hold anything but contempt and dislike for her. Presently with a nod and a quiet "Good night," he left her, descended the stairs. Then the front door closed and he was gone.

She had not attempted to make an answer. She stood perfectly still for a long time. Figures descended the stairway behind her, paying no attention to the little secretary in the navy blue dress. Lights began to go out; a clock somewhere struck twelve. Still Cherry stood as if she were made of stone with one hand on the banister and the great palms of the landing drooping a green shadow across her. And it seemed to her as if her heart and mind had stopped still too, and as if they never would move again.

For the first time in her life, Cherry spent an entirely wakeful night. Her wearied mind thrashed over and over again the last episode of the ill-starred party; her weary body twisted and struggled in a physical misery that matched the torture in her soul.

From no aspect was the situation bearable. She was not only a hireling—an upper servant really—in a dull, wealth-choked and convention-choked and suffocating old mansion, subject to the tiresome demands of a dull, egotistical, spoiled old lady, but she was helpless against the easy, indifferent contempt of stupid little nonentities like Amy Marshbanks and as a final crowning touch she had blurted out the unsayable, the inexcusable thing to Kelly Coates, intruded upon his personal affairs with all the effrontery of her rawness, her youth, her complete inexperience in such matters.

She could not bear it, and she had to bear it. Oh, what must he think of her!

The hours went by; chill daylight came into the room. She up jaded and weary, bathed and brushed her thick hair and somehow was at breakfast with Emma as usual at 8 o'clock. Emma gave her a sharp look as if she thought that even last night's activities should not have left such traces, but she said nothing; both women rustled the morning papers and drank their coffee almost in silence.

The customary miracle of service was going on in this house, was accomplished when Cherry walked through the downstairs rooms at noon after a full, fire-warmed morning in Mrs. Porter's apartment ,the ordinary procedure of letters and compliments and telephone calls. The great house had reassumed its aspect of luxurious mausoleum.

Cherry felt stifled. She told Emma she did not want any lunch; she took a long walk instead, for Mrs. Porter, all cheerful restoration and amazing vitality at breakfast, had admitted in mid-morning that she felt sleepy—not one bit tired, but sleepy. So the machinery of the day had been stopped. Cherry was free until late in the afternoon.

She walked toward the Presidio and down its narrow eucalyptus-shaded paths to the cliffs, and so along the bay shore. Right across the bay, under the arch of the long red bridge, was Sausalito and somewhere there was Kelly's studio, "Topcote."

Cherry sat down on a wall and stared wistfully at the hills as if her thoughts could cross the miles, and somehow find him and somehow let him know how eager she was to make her apologies. "Topcote" could easily be reached on a long afternoon's walk; it would be but a short half-dozen miles in all. Her fancy began to play.

Some day—her next all-free day—she would start early and walk straight across the bridge, and when she reached the great ramps on the Marin county side, she would ask someone where Spanish Farm road was, and follow it to some gate or fence that said, "Topcote." Her heart beat fast and hard at the thought. They would talk, he and she, and the memory of what had gone on before would be wiped away for both of them, and afterward they would be friends — Cherry the most sensible, the least exacting, the proudest and most loyal friend a man ever had.

She fed upon this hope all day; it was with her when she went to sleep at night. As the dull days began to wheel by she worked hard through every free hour she could find, studying, absorbing, thinking—desperate, almost angry in her determination to fit herself for that meeting, to be worthy of that friendship when it should come. And with every hour of humiliation and determination she oddly felt herself growing stronger and more sober.

Emma, quiet and stern-faced and impersonal, had to concede herself sufficiently like the rest of humankind to succumb to a heavy chest cold when changeable March weather was vexing the city, and for a few days the household was seriously alarmed about her. Her old employer was ill too, and a nurse who had often cared for Mrs. Porter was installed in the rooms of the mistress; there was a second nurse as well to relieve the first. Emma, however, refused any such help and battled her way sternly back to health on her own terms. To Cherry fell much of her domestic responsibility, and except for the few days when Emma was too uncomfortable to talk, she consulted her senior constantly made lists and wrote notes and took care of Emma.

For the little time that Mrs. Porter needed diversion, her nurses read to her or chatted with her and Cherry formed the habit of spending the early evening hours with Emma, as Emma grew convalescent. Although the older woman never acknowledged in words that she liked her companion or missed her or waited for her, Cherry grew to enjoy these evenings, and suspected that Emma did, too.

THEATERS

Rise to Power.

The dramatic story of a beautiful woman who rose from a humble maidservant in London to a power in the Neopolitan court as Lady Hamilton is told in sweeping fashion in Alexander Korda's picture "That Hamilton Woman," at the Ohio. Starring Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier the production has been filmed on a magnificent scale to reproduce the brilliance of the court as it was at that time. Alan Mowbray, Gladys Cooper, Sara Allgood and Henry Wilcoxon are in the supporting cast.

Dance Band Scores.

As an improvident music store proprietor James Stewart gets mixed up with a boarding house crowd that includes a struggling dance band in "Pot O' Gold," James Roosevelt's first production playing at the Madison. Paulette Goddard last seen in Chaplin's "The Dictator," is the song and dance girl that teaches Stewart to be a jitterbug. Horace Heidt's orchestra and dances staged by Larry Ceballos feature the picture. "Singapore Woman," with Brenda Marshall is the co-attraction.

Arabian Nights.

The color and brilliance of the Arabian Nights have been captured in Alexander Korda's Technicolor production, "The Thief of Bagdad," showing at the Ritz. Featuring Sabu, Conrad Veidt and June Duprez the picture displays the wily magic of the east by showing an enchanted city that arises from the ground, a flying horse that soars through the clouds, and other marvels. Fannie Hurst's dramatic novel, "Back Street," with Charles Boyer and Margaret Sullavan is the second attraction.

Cub Converts.

An idealistic cub reporter who converts a hard-boiled "city room" to his way of thinking gives an unusual twist to "Behind the News," drama of the Fourth Estate showing at the Ritz. With all the odds against him he saves an innocent man from the noose and chalks off a murder charge against the district attorney. Frank Albertson plays the "cub," Robert Armstrong, the managing editor, and Lloyd Nolan the ace reporter. Doris Davenport supplies the love interest. Gene Autry's "Back in the Saddle," is the second picture.

ATTACKED

"It is no fun to be ATTACKED by acid indigestion, gas, sour stomach, shortness of breath, and 'heartburn' due to constipation, but if you need a reliable medicine for it, my advice is to take Vendol," says Mr. Clinton S. Warman of Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

When constipation causes you to suffer symptoms like that tired, no-good feeling, lack of pep and enthusiasm, feel cross and irritable, awaken with a headache, bad taste in your mouth, breath offensive, a little dizzy, and the muscles of your neck, arms, shoulders, back, and legs feel sore and stiff, all due to constipation, start taking Vendol, the medicine with a 17-year reputation of helping people. Get that all-important temporary relief from constipation and see if you don't soon feel like a different person too.

Vendol is pleasant to take, prompt to act. Buy the larger sizes for economy.

All druggists sell VENDOL, a grand medicine for your sunny smile. Give it a chance to help you. Featured here by Central Drug Store, Main and 4th; Weinberger's, Leed's, and Muir's Drug Stores.

CHURCH OF CHRIST SCENE OF WEDDING

Miss Ruby Irene Calver Becomes Bride of Rev. Eugene Wendell Barbee of McComb Sunday In Open Church Service At Lexington.

WAXY green leaves of ivy contrasting with large blooms of red and white peonies decorated the Lexington Church of Christ Sunday afternoon for the lovely wedding service of Miss Ruby Irene Calver and Rev. Eugene Wendell Barbee of McComb. Palms, ferns and tall seven-branch candelabra formed a pretty background for the single ring service solemnized at 3:30 o'clock in the presence of many guests.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Calver of Lexington, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a sheer white ninon gown with shirred girdle and neckline. The dress was fashioned with long full sleeves and she wore an illusion finger-tip length veil. The only jewelry she wore was a double strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and carnations.

Miss Donna Marie Calver of Lexington was maid of honor for her sister, and Mrs. Doris E. Amick of Mansfield, also a sister, served as bridesmaid. Miss Calver's frock was of pink chiffon with a blue trim and with this she wore a pink veiled turban. Mrs. Amick's dress was made similar to Miss Calver's and was in blue chiffon. The full skirts were trimmed with a design of contrasting colored ribbons and the same design was on the short puff sleeves Miss Calver carried a bouquet of mixed flowers, pink carnations, yellow roses and pink and blue larkspur, tied with pink streamers. Mrs Amick's bouquet was the same and tied with blue streamers.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Calver wore a blue and white silk dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Nuptial music for the service was played by Mrs David Ireland, whose selections were "Romance" by Rubinstein, and "Adagio" by Beethoven.

Miss Carol J. Lankford of Cincinnati was the vocalist, singing "At Dawning," "I Love You Truly" and "A Prayer Perfect." Rev Jack W Mellick, pastor of the Lexington Church of Christ, read the service.

Ushers were Floyd Neidwhister and George Long of McComb and Ralph Amick of Mansfield, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held for members of the bridal party and guests from McComb. Later in the day the couple left for a trip to southern Ohio and Indiana. For traveling Mrs. Barbee wore a navy dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses

Mrs. Barbee a graduate of Lexington high school and the Cincinnati Bible Seminary, has been employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company Rev. HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, June 10.

This day's final issues may depend entirely on the personal decision to do the right thing, adhere to the ideal purpose, when either depression, sense of limitation, mental confusion or opposition tend in the direction to give up. If this inclination be suppressed with valiance, courage and good cheer, it is probable that influential or friendly interests are at hand ready with surprising co-operation. This may have results of a public nature or advance certain ambitions to figure in the public eye, for social benefits or community benefits.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of much unexpected and surprising happiness by adhering to high purpose, good will and cherished ideals for advancing the welfare and happiness of others as well as themselves. Discouragement and depression anent such worthy goals would bring frustration and misery whereas steadfast purpose would find rich co-operation, from those in high places or from public acclaim. Some changes may be needed in plans.

A child born on this day although genial, kind and public-spirited may cling tenaciously to its own ideas and ideals although such may be erratic, impractical or revolutionary and cause them some distress.

TIP ON COTTON

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Cotton corduroys do not fade when laundered with neutral soap suds, the U. S. bureau of home economics has found. However, the fabrics fade badly when a bleaching compound is used in the water. They are also apt to fade in a solution of soap and soda.

AN ECONOMY DISH

Frizzled beef stuffed in green peppers gives an economical dinner set-up. Make up frizzled dried beef in the usual way, stuff parboiled green peppers with it and cover with any leftover mashed potatoes, cooked carrots, peas or buttered crumbs. Bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Olga's nervous tension lessened perceptibly at her husband's response. But I was not as sure as she that he shared her belief in Marion's innocence.

There was nothing I could do about it, I reminded myself, making a tremendous effort to conquer my resentment against him. Outwardly he was conforming to Olga's belief and mine, so I could only go on with my story, especially as Olga, with a tremor in her voice, put a pertinent query:

"Has there been no word from her or from the gangsters who, you fear, may have her in their power? No demand for ransom?"

"No, I don't think it is a question of ransom," I said, and Philip interrupted me.

"What else can it be?" he said impatiently, "if you leave out the possibility—"

He left the sentence in mid-air.

Agrees, to Save Time.

I knew from long experience that there was but one way of getting my story over without interruption, and that was to pretend agreement with his theories.

"You're probably right," I said, "but subconsciously I have been reluctant to think of it. Harry and Lillian are successful professional people, but you know their rather hectic finances as well as I do."

"What difference does their possession of money, or the lack of it, have to do with the question?" he demanded heatedly. "They both know that I would be as ready to come forward now with any sum needed, as—as—"

"As you were when Marion and Carolyn were kidnaped from Whitney Hall through the machination of a half brother of Carolyn's stepfather," I said. Then, at his nervous, negating gesture, I turned to his wife with a smile.

Tribute to Veritzen.

"This husband of yours, as you know," I said, "is probably the most generous man in the world. Fortunately, Marion and Carolyn were restored to safety without Philip's munificent offer being needed."

"That is so like you, my Philip," Olga said, her eyes shining. But though her husband smiled at her, he put up a protesting hand which warned me to get on with my story.

"There has been no word from her?" he said.

"Yes, there has," I returned and forthwith recounted the startling telephone conversation I had had with Marion, and the clever manner in which my neighbor, Mrs. Ticer, had managed to let me know, by "scatting" her cat Belinda, that Dicky's niece was calling from her telephone.

I told them of Marion's distress of mind, so patent to me over the telephone, and of her evident fear of the man who ordered her around as if she were a child.

Tells of Marion's Flight.

Then I added the tale of their mad flight from Dicky, when he had frantically followed them down the road leading away from Ticer's.

"Dicky didn't succeed in catching them," I said. "He was afraid of wrecking both cars and killing everybody if he followed the other driver, who appeared utterly reckless as he rushed through the winding wood roads, and we have heard nothing directly from her since."

With his usual quickness, Philip Veritzen's keen intuition seized upon the word which had been a tacit admission.

"But indirectly?" he queried.

Unusual Menu For Bride-Elect Given Here

By BETSY NEWMAN

For the luncheon you are giving for the girl who is soon to be married, you will want to "dress up" the cakes you serve with the ice cream for dessert. Butterfly cup cakes are easy to make and very good. You can use the butterfly idea with other kinds of little cakes, too.

Today's Menu.

Fresh Fruit Cup
Molded Chicken Salad
Creamed New Potatoes
Olives Radishes
Fresh Asparagus
Hot Rolls Strawberry Parfait
Butterfly Cup Cake
Coffee

* * *

Molded Chicken Salad.

2 cups cooked chicken
¼ cup olives
½ cup celery
½ cup cucumber
¼ cup pimento
½ cup blanched almonds
1½ tablespoons plain gelatin
¼ cup cold water
¼ cups mayonnaise
1¾ cups whipped cream

Cut chicken meat into ½ or ¾ inch pieces, do not mince. Chop olives, ripe or green, chop celery and cucumber, but not too fine. Chop pimento and shred almonds (salted almonds may be used or you may substitute other nuts). Combine ingredients and toss lightly together. Add gelatin to cold water and let stand 5 minutes; dissolve by holding over hot water. Stir 1 or 2 tablespoons of the mayonnaise into the gelatin gradually, mixing it in well, then add the entire amount to the mayonnaise, stirring it in thoroughly. Whip cream and fold into mayonnaise mixture, then fold in chicken and vegetables. Turn into 1 large mold or 8 or 10 small ones which have been rinsed in cold water, and chill until firm. When ready to serve, loosen from molds by holding for a second in hot water. Transfer to plate lined with lettuce and watercress, and put additional mayonnaise on top. Wedge shaped pieces of tomato may be used to garnish. Serves 6 to 8.

Strawberry Parfait.

1½ cups crushed strawberries
1 cup sugar
¼ cup water
2 egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups whipping cream

Prepare strawberries and set in refrigerator to chill until needed. Make syrup of sugar and water, boiling to the short thread stage, 235 degrees F. Remove from heat while you quickly beat the egg whites stiff, add salt to them, then pour in hot syrup in steady stream, beating in as added. When all has been added, continue beating with spoon until mixture is cool. Fold in crushed berries, set aside and whip cream to thick, custard consistency and fold it in last. Pour into refrigerator freezing drawers and freeze. When serving you may put a spoonful of additional crushed and sweetened berries in the bottom of the parfait glasses, add parfait and top with a dash of whipped cream and a perfect strawberry.

Butterfly Cup Cakes.

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ginger
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
3 tablespoons molasses
7 tablespoons cold coffee

Add baking powder, salt and spices to sifted flour and sift together 3 times. Cream butter until soft, then add sugar gradually and cream until light. Blend in eggs, then molasses; gradually add sifted dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with coffee, stirring until smooth after each addition. Pour into greased muffin tins and bake in 375 degrees F. oven for 20 minutes. Bake 15 to 20 cakes. When cakes are cool slice off top crust of each and cut top half. Spread very thick layer of molasses frosting on each cake, then insert the two pieces of crust at an angle like butterfly's wings. Maraschino cherries or canned mandarin oranges may be placed in center of each for garnish.

Molasses Frosting.

2 egg whites
1½ cups sugar
4 tablespoons water
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon molasses
⅛ teaspoon cream tartar

Put all but vanilla in saucepan on low heat. Beat constantly with rotary beater until mixture will hold a peak — about 10 minutes Remove from heat, add vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread.

Dad Should Help Train His Children

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Many a mother tells and writes me that she would be able to develop good sleeping and eating habits in the child, or correct bad food and sleep habits in him, if her husband would co-operate.

This is a typical letter: "I set out to train my child of three to eat such vegetables as carrots, beets and spinach, by placing before him a very small amount of the vegetable, and nothing else, with the resolve that if he refused it he would get nothing more until the next regular meal time. Having tried this once the child chose to eat nothing for two meals, but ravenously ate the vegetable offered him at the third meal. After a few days he refused another food. But when I proceeded to let him have no other food that meal, my husband objected. 'This child must not be starved!' he shouted. Now what am I to do?"

To such an enquiry I reply: Do the best you can. Forget about the problem and keep peace, but arm yourself with zealous poise and persuasiveness at a more favorable time between meals, hoping to win the father to your program. He might be persuaded that he needs several days vacation from the family, or be willing for you to feed the baby in his absence. If all your overtures are vain, resign to the inevitable. Just make up your mind that there are some things you won't be able to do as you should like, and try not to worry about it. The baby may grow up well in spite of the eating problem. We must be practical. By and by you may find more adroit ways of winning Dad.

Another Mother's Problem.

Another mother's baby of ten months, having been given a bottle of milk at six o'clock in the morning, began to awaken and cry for it at five. She let him cry for one morning, and resolved to do so thereafter, sticking to the schedule. But the father, a university professor, on the second morning begged, then nagged her to get the baby his bottle, and prevailed with the argument, "He will keep the neighbors awake." It is possible, of course, that this infant had not been receiving enough food at the regular feeding periods.

I suggested that she propose to the father that unless she were allowed to carry through her program, she would leave the baby's care at night entirely to him.

Many a father ought anyway to assume care of the small child at night, especially if the mother is not strong and well, or has a heavy day's program. The average mother of one or several small children must care for them by night as well as day. She may, besides do all her own housework. One wonders how she stands it.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

ASKING FOR A SUIT

There are three different kinds of situations in which a defender may tell his partner, by means of the height of the card used on a trick, which suit he wishes returned as soon as his partner gets the lead. These three are when leading, when following suit to a trick and when discarding. The use of a high card calls for the higher-ranking of the other two side suits, a low card for the lower-ranking, such as spades in preference to diamonds. These signals also are useful sometimes against No Trump contracts, but then the situation usually is not so clear-cut.

	North
1. West
♠ Q 10 4 2	♠ K 8 5
♥ 8 7 5	♥ Q 10 9 6
♦ None	♦ K 9 3
♣ A 10 7 6 5 3	♣ K 4 2
2. North	East
♠ K J 5 2	♠ 10 6 3
♥ Q 10 9 4	♥ 5 2
♦ K J 6 3	♦ A Q 8
♣ 7	♣ K Q 10 8 2
3. North	East
♠ K 7 5	♠ A Q 3 2
♥ A 8 7 5	♥ 6
♦ A K Q J	♦ 10 9 8 6 4 3 2
♣ 8 5	♣ 3

In the first case above, with South playing for 4-Hearts, West leads the club A, then another club, hoping to give his partner a ruff. He hopes his partner will then return a diamond, so his second lead is the club 3, asking the lower-ranking of the side suits. If he preferred a spade return, his second lead would have been the club 10.

In the second case, with South playing for 4-Hearts, suppose West led the club A. It must be obvious to all that West will now shift suits. Since East wants the shift to be to diamonds, he plays his club 2 on that trick. If he preferred spades, he would have played the K. If a shift to trumps, a medium card, his 8.

In the third case, with South again seeking 4-Hearts, West leads the club Q. South winning with the A, next leading to the heart A and returning the heart 5. East hopes this betokens a probable losing finesse to his partner, and urgently wishes a high enough spade for a standard comeon, so discards his diamond 10, fearing that a discard of the diamond 2 to prevent that suit might cause a return of clubs. Since the dummy shows clearly that the high diamond can't request a diamond lead, West must read it as asking for a spade, the higher-ranking of the two side suits.

Could Cleopatra Drink a Pearl with Stomach Ulcer Pains?

An intriguing story of Cleopatra is the one where an admirer praised the beauty of two of her pearls, whereupon she dropped one into a glass of wine and drank it. She would hardly have done this had she suffered after-eating pains. Lemon and Oil Packs Good for Face

This is the season of the year when the wise woman weatherproofs her complexion. She conditions it for the warm days that are on the calendar. She has an eye out for what's ahead, intends to save herself a lot of bother. It is easier to prevent beauty afflictions than it is to cure them. If women kept that thought inside their pretty noodles the beauty shops wouldn't be grabbing so much of their money, cosmetic chemists would be pulling their teeth and grinding their hair in despair, because of the drop in sales.

There are times when the nicely behaved complexion looks sick a-bed. It goes dingy, takes on a rough surface, loses freshness. The why and the wherefore of the change cannot be determined. The condition of the health may be responsible. Digestive upsets play the dickens with human faces. Strong winds flay the cutaneous coat, causing skin scales to shed too rapidly. The reflection in the mirror does not produce a state of joy.

At such a beauty crisis, try the lemon and oil complexion pack. Lemon juice has a bleaching effect, oil soothes the troubled epidermis.

Tan collectors and little Miss Freckle Face will be benefited by this treatment. The war against freckles is a life job; one must keep everlastingly at it. The oldsters who are unhappy because moth patches and liver spots have appeared will do well by themselves if they indulge in this beauty rite. Once or twice a week will do.

Give the skin surface a thorough cleansing with cold cream; wipe it all away. Don't use soap at this time. While the cream is on, give the flesh a brisk tapping, so it wil be warm and glowing. Hammering with the finger tips loosens dead scales and that helps when they are discolored, or the surface looks gray.

Take three tablespoonfuls of olive oil, add one tablespoonful of strained lemon juice. Whip it together well. With a pledget of cotton which has been squeezed out of hot water slap it on, starting on the neck, working upward. Don't forget the back of the neck, a favorite roosting place for freckles.

Make a mask of gauze or old soft linen by cutting openings for the eyes and nose, and place over the face. Dip a heavy wash cloth in steaming hot water, lay it over the gauze, holding it close to the flesh with flattened palms.

Don't use soap to remove the oil. Wipe it away with a soft, dry towel. This treatment is also for toning and refining the skin. You'll love it. Expense is nothing and it works like a charm.

That Mansfield - Fostoria game of Saturday night at the Fairground ALMOST was played under protest, by Mansfield.

When that lost ball episode in left field occurred, the umpires at first were going to allow a home run, but Manager Alex Clowson, knowing his ground rules, put in a yip. Contending the ball evidently had rolled under the fence, he maintained the hit should have been held to a double.

At first the umps didn't see it that way, but when both arbiters and members of the two teams looked for the pellet and couldn't find it they were forced to agree with Clowson's theory.

It was the second straight night that the argumentative Clowson had taken the nod in the debate league. And the Braves won both games

And still they say a manager shouldn't argue with the umpires So do I when the argument is bound to get nothing, such as a debate on balls and strikes, or decisions on the base lines. But when the kick is legitimate, put it in there.

City Auditor Paul Kelley is lolling on the veranda at Possum Sunday as this weary podger struggles up the hill from the 18th Sunday.

"Look at that pink," says he. "You'll have to get the cream out tonight."

"That," I tell him, "is just plain red face from the game I was playing. There's no cream that'll do that any good."

Sam Saprano says the fans all around are cheering. "When are you going to have another fight?"

"We'll have one," Sam promises, "but this time we'll be all set to go before we announce the date.

"We had a lot of things to learn in that last fight show, and we learned some of 'em Why, we were just amateurs trying to put on a professional show. We meant well, but there were so many things we didn't know that we were kept running and on the jump for days ahead of time just catching up with minor details.

"We didn't even know there was a boxing commission, to start with."

Indians Lead By 4 Games

Sweep Series With Hot Athletics, Gain Rest.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The sizzling-hot Indians played golf or loafed into hotel lobbies today after earning their open date with a sweep of a four-game series with once-tough Philadelphia

The Athletics stormed into town Friday with a record of 14 victories in their last 18 games. They meekly entrained for Detroit last night, first-division hopes shattered for the present.

Cleveland swung four games ahead in the American League race as a result of the triumphs. Tomorrow the Redskins resume action with Bob Feller seeking victory No. 13 in the start of a three-day set with Washington.

Mel Harder won the opener yesterday, 7 to 4, and Clint Brown received credit for the 8 to 6 decision in the nightcap

Harder was touched for nine hits in six innings but scattered them effectively. However, when the first two batters in the seventh connected safely, Manager Roger Peckinpaugh called on Harry Eisenstat. The tricky southpaw couldn't put out the fire though and Joe Heving finally ambled in to pitch hitless ball the rest of the way.

The Indians hopped on Johnny Babich and Tom Ferrick for eight hits, including three singles by Rollie Emsley and a triple by Ken Keltner.

Al Milnar started for the Indians in the nightcap, but was routed in the fifth inning after allowing seven hits and walking five. Brown gave up only two safe blows in finishing.

Ken Keltner blasted a home run to lead a 10-hit assault against Phil Marchildon, Luman Harris and Ferrick. Ken's smash came with two on base and he drove in another run with a single.

* * *

Remember Dick Bartell, the chirruping little shortstop who qualified as the fall guy of the last world series by holding the ball while Buck McCormick of the Cincinnati Reds went charging home with the tying run in the deciding game?

* * *

Well, the Detroit Tigers turned him loose not long ago, and he barely caught on as a free agent with his old club, the New York Giants.

Since then he has been riding the Giants' bench yelling his head off and wondering if Bill Jurges, the regular shortstop, ever would need rest It was only two days ago that Dick finally slipped into the line-up as a pinch-hitter, and they let him start yesterday against the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals.

He practically ruined the Cards single-handed. He singled two runs home in the ninth inning of the first contest as the Giants scored five times to tie the score, and then in the tenth he pounded a home run with one on to win the encounter, 7 to 5. He clouted a double and a single in the nightcap, which the Giants also won, 12 to 7, and now it's Jurges' turn to wonder when he'll get off the bench.

The double defeat dropped the Cards into second place in the National League race despite the fact Brooklyn was losing a single tilt to Cincinnati, 3 to 2.

The Pittsburgh Pirates hammered the Phillies, 12 to 2, and then were set down by the Phillies' unpronounceable Johnny Podgny 5 to 2 Chicago thumped the Boston Braves, 5 to 1 and then got slaughtered, 13 to 1

In the American League, the Boston Red Sox bounced the Chicago White Sox twice, 5 to 3 and 3 to 0, and climbed into second place behind Cleveland's flying Indians

Cleveland set the Philadelphia Athletics back twice, 7 to 4 and 8 to 6 and took a little firmer grip on first place

The Yankees subdued the St Louis Browns 9 to 3 in their first game and 8 to 3 in the second. Washington scuttled Detroit, 9 to 3

Akron Moose Club Swamps Mansfield

Akron Moose brought a real softball club to town yesterday to swamp Mansfield Moose 25 to 9 in the lodge traveling league, handing Mansfield its first defeat in three league games

Of the first four hits collected by the visitors, three were home runs and the fourth was a triple. And that's the way the game went.

Akron scored in every inning, piling up 25 hits, while Mansfield didn't get a hit until the sixth inning when the home club counted six runs. Mansfield got a total of seven hits.

Mansfield plays Canton at Prospect park next Sunday.

Liberties Have Bad Day In Field, Bow To Willard

The Liberty Park ball club had a bad day in the field and bowed yesterday to the V.F.W club of Willard, 11 to 6 on the home lot.

* * *

Seven errors by the Liberties made a lot of holes in the eight-hit pitching of Ralph Hazlett who was trying for the season's third win. The Vets painlessly gathered eight unearned runs in the fielders' frolic.

C Atton led the Liberties at the stick with three hits out of four chances J Atton bashed the leather two out of four

Patterson led the Vets with two out of four.

Thomas, Willard first baseman injured his ankle as he attempted to steal second in the sixth inning He was taken to General hospital for first aid.

Providents Beat Elyria

Four-Run Rally In 7th Decides Softball Game.

Mansfield Provident Loan girls' softball club got back in the win column yesterday at Elyria, edging to a 5 to 3 victory behind Fran Knapp's seven-hit hurling.

Fran fanned seven Elyrians and gave up only one frank to first.

Jean Herrick paced the Providents with two hits in four times up. It took a four run rally in the seventh inning to win for the state champions.

* * *

Friday at 5:30 the Providents meet the Ashland Provident Loans at Johns park, and Sunday they battle the North Ridgeville club at Johns park at 2:30 North Ridgeville has one of the best pitchers the Providents have faced this season.

Bellville Club Beats Ontario

Bellville Merchants took the Ontario ball club into camp yesterday 11 to 7 at Ontario. The defeat gave Ontario a fifty-fifty break for the week-end as the Onts walloped the Keller nine of Norwalk 8 to 3 under the lights at Norwalk Saturday night.

* * *

Ontario out in front 6-0 at the end of the fifth let up on the Merchants who promptly took advantage of the opportunity and made 11 runs in the sixth and seventh to take the game.

* * *

At Norwalk, Ontario's Pete Beer allowed only 7 hits while his mates were garnering a total of 14 bingles Pilot Red Hamman blasted one over the center field wall in the ninth to do his share.

Manager Lester Puckrin of Norwalk belted one out of the park in third for the Kellerites.

Sore Back Fails to Stop Sam

Snead Swings In Agony, But He Keeps Swinging.

By HARRY FERGUSON

FORT WORTH, Tex. — (U.P.) — Craig Wood had a sore back and won the National Open golf championship. Samuel Jackson Snead also had a sore back and he also won quite a victory. It was not a victory in the usual meaning of the word—nobody handed Snead $1,000; no crowd gathered to pump his hand and ask for his autograph; no one brought bales of congratulatory telegrams and handed them to him. It was a quiet victory and one that was won at the cost of considerable physical pain.

* * *

Snead finished in a tie for twelfth place in the Open. He played his last two rounds in agony and was unable to stoop over to line up putts or pick a ball out of the cup.

He would have been fully justified in withdrawing from the tournament but he went limping on around the fairways, giving his best to every shot. Many persons have written and spoken harsh words about Snead and I have been among them.

After seeing what happened at the Colonial Golf club this would be a nice time for all of us to get together and tender Snead an apology. Herewith is mine. Everything was stacked against Snead here.

A magazine carried an article last week on the Open and one of the illustrations showed Snead just after he had taken his disastrous eight on the final hole of the Open at Philadelphia in 1939.

That eight cost him the tournament and added to the legend that he had no heart. Posters bearing the illustration were placed all around the course here and it was impossible for Snead to walk out of the locker room without being reminded of how he blew the best chance he may ever have to win the Open.

In the face of that he was up among the leaders at the half way point On Saturday morning when the last two rounds started his back became so painful that he couldn't bend over and a fork of fire shot through his muscles every time he lifted his arms to swing a club The crowd was all for him when he limped onto the 18th green at the end of the morning round and tried to bend over to line up a tough putt It was no use. The pain was too much and he had to hit it without lining the ball and the pin. He had a 77 on that round and when he went into the locker room many persons thought he either would soar in to the 80's in the afternoon round or withdraw

He did neither. A doctor went to work on his back with bandages and adhesive tape Occasionally Snead would get off the table, swing a club and ask the physician to readjust the bandages.

* * *

So he went out that afternoon, clipped four strokes off his morning round and came in with a creditable 73.

* * *

Snead said he played on through the afternoon because he wanted to finish among the top of 30 men and thereby be automatically qualified for next year's Open But I think the picture that leered at him from walls and fences had something to do with his decision to go out there and take it for 18 painful holes. I think something inside of him caught fire and made him want to show us that we had been wrong about him all these years.

That was the kind of victory Snead won and in its way is almost as important as the one Craig Wood won

Athletic Supplies Beat Barnes Club

The Athletic Supplies went into an extra inning before they subdued the Barnes Challengers 3-2 yesterday in a softball tilt at John's park.

The Challengers tied the score in the first half of the ninth forcing the game into overtime. Two hits and a sacrifice did the trick for the Barnesmen.

The Supplies winning run came on a long double by Meeker who scored on a single by Brandt.

Winebrenner, on the mound for the Challengers, whiffed 15 Supplymen. Bush was on the winning hill.

The Supplies are in the Commercial B league. The Challengers are in City A league.

Feller Fills Out Papers

BOB FELLER

Pitcher Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians, ace hurler of the big leagues, cheerfully fills out his draft questionnaire in his Cleveland hotel room. Feller's order number is 2,857. Feller, draft board officials believe, will be called for his physical examination by Aug. 1. His entry into the army shortly thereafter would be probable.

PAYING DIVIDENDS

Let's doff our hats to blond Craig Wood,
At last the fellow's getting good.

Stars Enter Ohio Tourney

Even Open Champion Wood Considers Play.

GIRARD—(AP)— Only Champion Craig Wood was needed today to round out a star-studded field for the $5,000 Mahoning Valley open which gets under way Friday.

Wood hasn't made a decision yet but tournament Manager Petter M. Wellman is confident the 39-year-old blond shot-maker will be on hand. There's a $500 bonus, in addition to a probable share of the prize money, waiting for him.

* * *

The entry list for the 72-hole, three-day test is expected to reach 200 by the time the first sharpshooter fires off No. 1 tee Friday morning. Eighteen-hole sessions are scheduled the first two days with the field being slashed to 60 professionals and 15 amateurs for the 36-hole finals Sunday.

Johnny Bulla, who finished third in the national open, now rates as the top player registered. He will fly here in his own plane.

Other big-name golfers already entered are Ben Hogan, Dick Metz, Lloyd Mangrum, Sam Snead, Horton Smith, Lawson Little, Clayton Heafner, Ralph Guldahl and Jim Ferrier, former Australian champion. All of these were among the 30 low finishers in the Fort Worth grind.

Ohioans enrolled for the medal play, with $1,200 going to the winner, include:

Byron Nelson of Toledo, Billy Burke of Cleveland, Brad Rang, Herman Keiser and Al Espinosa of Akron, Tony Penna and Ock Wiliowert of Dayton, and Gus Peterson of Alliance.

Braves Hit Hot Streak

Win Four of Last Five Games; TeStruth Hurt.

HOTTEST shots of the Ohio State league today are the Mansfield Braves, winners of four of their last five games, and victors yesterday at Fostoria where they battered the Birds into submission 8 to 4.

* * *

The Mansfield victory splurge, gained on four well-pitched ball games, boosted the Braves percentage to the even-Steven mark of .500 on 10 victories and as many defeats, and left them just half a game behind third-place Fremont.

* * *

Tonight at the Fairground they battle the Findlay Browns, currently tied for first place with Tiffin.

Jim Coleman turned in his first win for the Braves yesterday, limiting the Red Birds to five hits and fanning nine. He won the hard way, however, issuing eight bases on balls.

Mansfield stepped out to a three run lead in the first inning and stretched it to five in the fourth before Fostoria came back with one in the last of the fourth. Two more runs for the Braves in the fifth clinched the tilt.

The victory was costly for the Braves as they lost the services for a time of Bob TeStruth, who has been playing a bang-up game at second, and doing his share with the stick.

* * *

Bob sprained an ankle sliding into second in the fourth inning and was replaced by handyman Alex Clowson, who played the first couple games of the season at the keystone sack when TeStruth was injured.

Blame Sabotage for Defense Plant Blaze

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking for Myself.

I WISH Hollywood would make more pictures like "Penny Serenade" and fewer like "Flame of New Orleans," I haven't met one person, Broadway or provincial softie, who didn't give "Penny" a rave notice . . .

Dorothy Kilgallen

I've never met a genius with slicked-down hair. That goes for Oscar Levant, John Kieran, William Saroyan, Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman. They never looked plastered, if you know what I mean . . . The only poem I know by heart is the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet," by W. Shakespeare. I don't know why that sticks in my mind, when I can't remember one-four-line Edgar Guester . . .

I love red shoes, but when I wear them I always feel a little like Sadie Thompson in "Rain."

* * *

I'm really troubled about the Mayor LaGuardia's plan to ban all those pinball machines around town. I rarely have time to lose myself in the fascination of the spinning silver balls, but I wonder, if the ban goes through, what will become of that considerable section of the city's population that spends most of its life either playing the machines or kibitzing and giving sympathetic body-English to a straying marble?

Are fan clubs getting outmoded? I don't hear much about them these days, except from Eddy Duchin fans, who are my most faithful correspondents . . .

I never see a stout lady in beach pajamas without recalling Odgen Nash's rhymed question ending: "You look divine as you advance, but have you seen yourself retreating?"

* * *

I love accordion pleats, but I'm always chary about sitting in them . . . Funniest story of the week for me was Madeleine Carroll's being "stranded" on an island. I don't mind press agent stories as long as they're good. Those are the sort of tales that make people chuckle on the subway after a hard day's work. . . .

For scenery, no restaurant tops the Tavern on the Green in Central park. It's so relaxing to sit and watch the equestrians on the bridle path or the skyscrapers lighting up in the dusk . . .

It only takes me ten minutes to clutter a desk so it takes half an hour to clear it . . . My nomination for a "comer" is Director Curtis Bernhardt, who directed "Million Dollar Baby." Last year he did "My Love Came Back," which was one of the cinema "sleepers." He's got something.

* * *

I think male screen stars usually look prettier in person than on the screen—with femmes, it's vice versa, except for a few. Recent case in point is Cesar Romero, who did a neat job of slaying the local belles.

He wafted from El Morocco to the Barberry Room to the Stork club, and the sighs from debutantes and hat check girls alike are enough to waft you out of your ringside seat.

One ciggie vendor, who had been relatively unimpressed by Cesar's pulchritude on the screen, collapsed quietly as he passed by her the other evening.

When she had picked herself up, she moaned, "Oh, he's beautiful. I'll never be the same again!" So you see.

This is the time of year when I get a yen to go out to Steeplechase park and stay there until I've been on all the rides . . . Sometimes I think the slowest thing in the world is a pedestrian trying to walk from Times Square to 50th Street on Broadway at 11:30 Saturday night.

I never can understand why people who write about first nights are inclined to describe the first nighters as rude audiences. I think in 99 per cent of the cases they are the best audiences an actor ever has; they may push each other around a little in the lobby at intermisisons, but I have observed that they laugh more generously, stay longer in their seats, and applaud for more curtain calls than any subsequent theaterful of ticket buyers.

* * *

I don't think there is any night club entertainment in town as delightfully incongruous as the solemn Chinese at Forbidden City who warbles "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" . . .

Dancing at Madison Square Garden isn't such a novelty. I can think of a lot of waltzing I've seen there in the past several years, only it was captioned "boxing" . . .

My favorite line describing one of those bouts is the classic Jimmy Cannon whispered into Bill Corum's ear after Jack Doyle curled up on the canvas one evening. "Bill," said James, "Doyle should have fought Mother Machree instead of singing" . . .

HOLLYWOOD — "Caught in the Draft." Screenplay by Harry Tugend. Directed by David Butler. Principals: Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour, Lynne Overman, Eddie Bracken, Clarence Kolb.

B. G. DeSylva's first production at Paramount is full of the showmanship he made famous last season on Broadway. It's loaded with laughs, provided mainly by the star but bolstered by all.

Hope plays a movie star, allergic to noise, who courts the colonel's daughter for "exemption" purposes and tricks himself into enlisting. As a rookie, he always has his foot in it (even more so than did "Buck Privates") but he wins the gal in the end.

Miss Lamour should wear clothes oftener. She's a cutie dressed up, too.

The old tragic tale of the boy of Spain who was born to die in the arena is told again in a movie that for artful use of color has the others backed off the palette. The story of the good wife and the bad siren who fought for the matador's love, of the mother who had lost her husband in the ring and anticipated her son's fate, of the arena's fatal fascination, is still good. Matador Power handles his first real character role well. Wife Darnell and Siren Hayworth are both good, but the best acting is Mother Nazimova's Bullfight Critic Cregar's, and Down-and-Out Matador Naish's.

Unobtrusively stealing the whole, however, is the dramatic color photography—in spectacle scenes especially.

WAR FACTORIES IN U. S. STILL GAINING SPEED

Correspondent Sees American Plants Surpassing World In 1942 'High Gear.'

By EDWIN STOUT

CLEVELAND —(AP)— American war factories are still picking up speed in second gear—where England was in 1939. But they are getting set to go into high in 1942 with tremendous acceleration.

Engineers, executives, ordnance experts and army and navy officers who are putting the American factories in operation say that when they are going full blast they will surpass anything the world has ever seen.

On an air tour of defense plants with other returned war correspondents, I have gone through key factories in five states with permission of the war and navy departments.

Presidents, vice-presidents, chairmen and managers of the plants, which have war contracts totaling nearly three billion dollars, almost without exception have given me these answers to questions on their production problems:

1—There are no immediate critical shortages of men or materials;

2—The machine tool industry that makes the machines that make the planes, tanks and guns is keeping up to schedule;

3—"Washington" — the army, the navy, the office of production management — gets the plants which they have to have in tools and materials almost with an Aladdin touch;

4—The only bottleneck is time.

Thus, unlike British plants, American factories are free from constant worry over materials and manpower. But they still have much to do before war goods roll out in huge quantities.

On the average, it takes about a year to put together a war goods plant. Ordinarily, peace factories cannot be converted economically to mass war production.

For example, none of the standard machines with which the American Car and Foundry company builds freight cars could be used in their new tank factory. There was no standard equipment in the Ford plant that could handle the crankshafts and cylinders and other parts of the Pratt and Whitney engine Ford is to build at the rate of 40 a day in a new factory.

It was quicker to build new buildings for the plants than to find old buildings, the manufacturers said.

FORMER KAISER BURIED AT NOON

Casket Placed In Tiny Chapel at Doorn With Rites Fixed By Wilhelm 40 Years Ago.

(By Associated Press)

DOORN, German-Occupied Netherlands — Wilhelm II, former kaiser of imperial Germany, was buried at noon today with rites which he arranged himself 40 years ago.

He died here Wednesday at the age of 82 after almost 23 years of kile following his flight from Germany in the last days of the World war.

As early as 1901 he had determined that his burial should be modest and unobstrusive and, except for the participation of army representatives, should be limited to the immediate family.

"I desire," he specified, "to rest among my trees and flowers of huize (house) Doorn."

That wish was carried out to the letter. The casket was entombed in a tiny chapel on the Doorn manor grounds.

No Nazi flag was displayed, but wreaths from Hitler and various branches of Germany's armed forces bore the Swastika and had the colors of the third reich.

Many of Wilhelm's World war generals, headed by Field Marshal August Van Mackensen, attended the services, along with representatives of the Bulgarian and Hungarian legations from Berlin.

Members of the family who attended included Princess Hermine, the farmer kaiser's second wife; former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, new head of the house of Hohenzollern; and other sons and grandsons and their wives.

Mrs. Shambaugh is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Lucille Zaner, of Plymouth, Bessie Shambaugh, of Cleveland, and Margaret Shambaugh, of Columbus; a son, William Shambaugh, of near Mansfield; nine grandchildren and a brother, Algia Poland, of Kansas City, Mo.

CYCLONE HITS

5,000 Reported Dead as Storm Strikes In India.

CALCUTTA —(INS)— Five thousand persons were reported today to have lost their lives in a cyclonic storm that struck a large number of towns and villages in the Barisal district of India.

The disaster occurred May 25 but the news was delayed in reaching Caclutta. Torrential downpours of rain trapped thousands of villagers in their huts.

BODY IDENTIFIED

LEBANON —(INS)— The body of a man found near the B. & O. railroad tracks at nearby Carlisle was identified as that of Harry Henderson, 60, of Cincinnati.

HIGH PRAISE CITED FOR MEN WHO SERVE ON DRAFT BOARDS

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Selective service headquarters today cited for high praise the unknown civilian soldiers of the new army—those 19,500 citizens who serve on the nation's local draft boards.

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, acting headquarters director, said that "they serve for no other renumeration than the knowledge that they are giving of their time and their effort for their country in an hour of need."

Behind the cover of such impersonal terms as "selective service system" and "local boards" the work of these individuals has received little more than formal notice. Yet they actually compose one of the first groups of American citizens to volunteer their services to the country in the present emergency.

Night after night in cities, towns and rural districts, these doctors, lawyers, business men and members of many other callings sacrifice their evenings to meet at members of the local boards.

Selective service officials said that the average local board member puts in 10 to 20 hours a week on the job. Their contributions in time, it was pointed out, are matched by the responsibility they assume in making decisions about which registrants are available for military duty.

Hershey said in commenting on their work that "their sacrifices in carrying out their job fill a vital chapter in American history.

PEAK PASSING

Health Commissioner Says Measles on Decline.

Mansfield's current epidemic of measles has definitely passed its peak and shows signs of abating, according to Dr. R. C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner.

Rehder said that only 110 cases had been reported in both the city and county since the beginning of the month, a drop of more than 20 per cent under May reports.

During May, 528 new cases were reported in the city, bringing the total for the year to 1,256. County figures have not been completed, according to the commissioner. Rehder said that the summer vacation period should bring a decline in the number of cases.

The commissioner also reported the following cases of other diseases: Influenza, one new case, bringing the total to 20; tuberculosis, five new cases and a total of 13; and chicken pox, five new cases for a total of 53.

POLICEMAN DIES

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Sergeant Patrick McNeeley, colorful figure in the Cleveland police department, was dead today of a stomach disease. McNeeley, 52, and a bachelor, shot six men during the course of his police career, three of whom died.

INFANT DIES

Baby Born To Mr. And Mrs. Mitchell Succumbs At Hospital.

Etta May Mitchell, two-day-old daughter of Shannon and Laura Miller Mitchell, 186 Blymyer avenue, died at General hospital early Monday morning.

She is survived by her parents, her paternal grandmother, Mrs. May Bender of Mansfield, and her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Mills, Muncie, Ind.

The body is at the Jones memorial where services will be conducted by Rev. Charles F. Sheriff Tuesday at 1:30 p. m. Burial will be at Fairview cemetery in Galion.

Laff-a-Day

"Your wife left a note for you, too, this morning, Mr. Ellis!"

A good example was set for the hundreds of property owners in the city who have been assessed for street improvements. City Engineer W. C. Statler was the first person to pay his assessment, showing up bright and early at City Auditor Paul L. Kelley's office this morning to pay charges against him for repaving West Fourth street in front of his home.

Mansfield firemen failed to find any fire when they arrived at Diamond and First streets in answer to a week-end fire call but caught two young girls who turned in the false alarm. Nettled by several false alarms in the past few weeks, the firemen appealed to police who finally ran down the culprits at the home of their parents on East First street. They warned the parents and reprimanded the girls who promised not to repeat the act. The girls told police that had seen playmates turn in alarms previously and they wanted to see what would happen."

Mansfield's rose gardens at their best over the week-end, drew the praise of hundreds of motorists who drove about the city to see them. Helped by a comparatively mild winter and warm spring, the rose bushes are all showing their best blossoms and present a colorful picture where a number of varieties are blooming together.

* * *

Emil Aderman and Ross Welker, city workmen, are having a difficult kind of spring repainting job these days. They are putting the yellow and white traffic lines on streets and along the curbs. The "redecorating" has already been completed around Central park. Like most painters, they are having trouble with people who want to see if the paint is wet and drive over the guards to smear the new lines. "A lot of motorists are just like kids," Aderman said as he applied his brush to a retouching job made necessary by tire-tracks on the newly applied paint.

OTHERS NAMED

4 More Richland Farm Youths Get State Farmer Degrees.

Five Richland county farm youths received the degree of state farmer at the Ohio Future Farmer conference in Columbus over the week-end to put the county well above the average for the state. In all, 136 awards were made, an average of less than two per county.

Four of the Richland awards went to members of the FFA class at Butler high school, of which Dale Friday is teacher. They included LeRoy Black, Clark Stahl, Perry Crunkilton, and Elwin Harris. The other was won by Richard Gramly, Weller township.

The awards were made for outstanding work in the classroom and with junior farm projects.

A number of county high schools had livestock judging teams at the state meeting in Columbus.

DAMAGE HITS $500,000, ALL WORK HALTED

Five Firemen Injured, Police Charge Subversive Act In West Virginia Fire.

(By United Press)

WHEELING, W. Va.—Sabotage was blamed today as the possible cause of a spectacular fire that raged through the Wheeling Machine Products company plant, causing loss estimated at $500,000 to property and highly specialized machinery used in producing national defense orders.

"The cause of that fire looks very suspicious," said E. W. Krause, company president, as investigators began probing the ruins for origin of the five-hour blaze that demolished the main plant building and damaged adjoining wings yesterday.

"All company records and some almost irreplacable machines and tools were destroyed, entirely halting our production at the plant," he said. He said 70 per cent of the company's output was of "national defense nature."

He declined to specify what type of defense orders the plant had been producing other than special fabricating machines and tools for Pittsburgh and Youngstown district steel mills. It was reported, however, the company recently had received an order for large quantities of artillery shell casings. During the World war the plant produced 75 millimeter shells for the army, it was recalled.

After receiving a report from troopers, John W. Bosworth, state police superintendent, said he believed there had been sabotage. The fire, according to the report, started in ground floor machine shops and third story office space simultaneously. The flames then spread to two wings adjacent to the company's oil supply tanks.

Five firemen were burned, one seriously when a portion of the building collapsed, showering them with embers. Most seriously hurt was Fireman Charles Simmons.

None of the company's 382 production workers was in the plant when the fire started.

For a time the fire threatened a nearby "bulk" storage depot of the Gulf Oil Refining corporation. The machine plant and the depot are situated along the Ohio river just north of the downtown section and near suburban Warwood.

Krause said he had notified defense officials at Washington of the enforced shutdown of the plant but would not say whether he had asked a federal investigation of the fire's origin.

Ore Ship Capacity For U. S. Ports Up Two Million Tons

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Addition of 20 vessels of Canadian registry to the 291 of American registry in the Great Lakes ore fleet makes available 2,000,000 more ton capacity for carrying ore between American ports this season, the magazine Steel revealed today.

A bill signed by President Roosevelt permitted bulk carriers of Canadian registry to carry iron ore to American ports to aid the defense program.

Steel makers, meanwhile, are preparing full facts for Washington officials on the proposition of stepping up steel ingot production by 10,000,000 tons of ingots yearly, the magazine added.

It will then be up to the government to decide whether the complicated program, requiring two years to fulfill, will be worth the effort, offset as it will be, by removing material, labor and time from immediate defense problems.

TAKES OWN LIFE AT GREENWICH

Ollie Edwards, 26, Kills Self; Funeral Tuesday.

GREENWICH — Funeral services for Ollie Edwards, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Edwards, four miles northeast of here, who was found dead at his home Saturday night, will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the Church of Christ. Rev. Stanley Johnson will officiate. Burial will be at North Fairfield.

Young Edwards was found lying in a pool of blood with a discharged shotgun beside him. Huron County Coroner D. E. Bradish returned a verdict of suicide. He said Edwards had been despondent.

The youth, an adopted son, is survived by four brothers, the addresses of whom are unknown.

LEADING ISSUES RISE AS BUYING MOOD BRIGHTENS

Steels, Commodities Net Gains Despite Slow Dealings as Market Opens.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Buying sentiment brightened a bit in today's stock market and leading issues were lifted fractions to a point or so. Improved tendencies appeared at the start but dealings were slow.

Prominent early gainers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible Steel, International harvester, and Pennsylvania.

Another burst of strength in commodities, especially cotton futures, provided a prop for the securities division.

Wall Street seemed heartened, brokers said, by reports of initial allied successes in Syria and signs the government was giving more serious attention to labor rifts which have been interfering with the defense program.

The feeling congress would eventually decide on a more equitable tax bill was helpful.

Market analysts, in their search for trend clues, noted the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that for many companies may established new records, particularly as to production.

with the British before dawn on Sunday struck northward on the roads to the strains of La Marseillaise. Their numbers soon were augmented by other Free French sympathizers picked up along the route.

In general, resistance thus far has been slight. At some points, Syrians welcomed the Allies tumultuously. Pamphlets dropped by British airplanes promising independence of Syria and warning against the threat of Nazi domination apparently carried considerable weight.

The British and Free French forces, operating under command of General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, borrowed freely from the German "blitz" tactics which the commander learned at first-hand in Libya after he had driven the Italians westward to Benghazi and beyond.

Great waves of fighting and bomber planes, including many American-built Curtiss Tomahawks, preceded the armored columns, blasting away at airdromes where the Germans had entrenched themselves as "technicians and teachers."

Systematic capture of every usable airfield along the battle route northward was reported, while the military command flashed word that the towns of Dera-a Merj Ayoum and Tyre had been taken after the seizure of Suweida against virtually negligible resistance yesterday. Suweida went to the British only eight hours after the attack began, an indication in itself of the speed of the Allied advance.

Military secrecy prevented disclosure of details of operations further to the east, where a British and Free French column struck swiftly along the Euphrates river valley for strategic Rakka.

Reports available to correspondents indicated that Damascus, the oldest still-inhabited city in the world, might be in British and Free French hands by nightfall.

French officials in territory already occupied by the British and Free French were said to be cooperating with the Allies.

ORDERS ARMY TO GUARD WORKERS

FDR Directs Full Military Protection For Men Who Go Back To Jobs.

with the explosive situation at the vast plant, which holds contracts for $191,000,000 in airplanes for this nation and Britain.

Mr. Roosevelt issued the order in his second-floor oval study of the White House about 10:40 a. m., less than an hour after he had returned from a cruise on Chesapeake Bay.

It was the most crucial decision on administration labor policy which he has reached in his more than eight years as chief executive—years which had been marked by a friendly administration attitude towards organized labor.

It was only a matter of minutes after the order was issued that the poised troops were on the move. The strategy had been prepared over the week-end, and the flash from the White House sent the mechanized soldiers rolling toward the Inglewood plant in the Los Angeles suburbs.

A White House announcement said that at the time the order was signed, approximately 1,000 workers with lunch pails were ready to enter the plant and resume work, but were being prevented by approximately an equal number of pickets of the striking CIO United Automobile Workers.

At that time, it was disclosed by Early, no more than ten or a dozen workers actually had entered the plant through the CIO picket line despite polite efforts to provide protection for them.

An oral statement by Early disclosing the order follows:

"At 10:40 the president in his study signed the executive order authorizing the secretary of war immediately to take possession of and operate the plant of North American, Inc., at Los Angeles, now closed as a result of a strike.

"The order was prepared in collaboration with the war department, the justice department, the defense agencies, and the office of production management. He also took the step unanimously approved by the cabinet when he laid it before it at its last meeting.

"Before he signed the order, the president with Col. Patterson, Jackson and Hillman had talked to the plant by telephone to the army officer then on duty. This officer (Lieut. Col. Branshaw) told the president that there were about 1,000 men with dinner pails ready to enter the plant and resume work. They were being prevented by about 1,000 other men on picket lines. The officer said that in his opinion the army should move in because, in his opinion, the situation was beyond the control of the Los Angeles police.

"When the order was given, the colonel was specifically directed by Patterson, acting in accordance with the president's instructions, to tell the military they should give the men protection at work, leaving work and at their homes.

"Sidney Hillman and the others agreed that the issuance of the order was necessary if the plant was to open and to operate because the workers willing to return to work seemed timid and hesitant to do so unless given army protection."

The use of federal troops to open up a struck plant was almost unprecedented in peacetime history, and marked the second time in ten years that they have been used to cope with a domestic disorder. The last occasion was the dispersal of the World war bonus army in this city, ordered by former President Herbert Hoover in 1931.

Federal troops also were called out to quell disorder in the famous Pullman strike in Illinois near the end of the last century.

ASKS RATE CUT

Ohio Bell Estimates Reduction Would save $125,000 Yearly.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— The Ohio Bell Telephone company today asked the state utilities commission to approve new lower rates on calls between downtown Cleveland and those outlying suburban exchanges to which toll charges apply, and on toll charge calls between those suburban exchanges not in the Cleveland local service area.

Ohio Bell officials estimated that the rate revision would save Cleveland and suburban subscribers about $125,000 annually.

JUST KIDS By Ad Carter

NO SOONER HAD MR. BRANNER AND STEVE ARRIVED AT THE ORPHANAGE THAN STEVE GOT HIMSELF MIXED UP IN AN ARGUMENT...
I'M ASHAMED OF YOU, STEVE—STARTING A FIGHT WHEN YOU'RE A GUEST OF YOUR FRIENDS!
I AM, TOO, SIR
STEVE HAS SOMETHING TO SAY TO YOU, MRS. WILCOX...
MRS. WILCOX—I'M ASHAMED OF MYSELF FOR FIGHTING
ALL RIGHT, STEVE—NOW YOU RUN ALONG WITH THE CHILDREN WHILE WE ADULTS TALK
I GOT IT OUT OF THE GREEN BOY—IT WAS HIS FAULT—HE'S ALWAYS BEEN A TROUBLE-MAKER—BUT HE'S A LOT BETTER THAN WHEN HE CAME HERE
THAT'S FUNNY—STEVE SAID NOT TO BLAME PLATTFOOT—I THINK THAT'S WHAT HE CALLED HIM
YOU SEE, MR. BRANNER—STEVE WAS NEVER ONE TO TELL ON ANYONE AND IF YOU KNEW THE DETAILS YOU WOULDN'T BLAME STEVE ONE MITE!
I'D LIKE TO KNOW THE DETAILS, BECAUSE I DON'T LIKE TO BLAME STEVE WHEN HE'S IN THE RIGHT

FIRESTONE TIRES WIN AGAIN IN 500-MILE INDIANAPOLIS RACE

MAURI ROSE, Co-Winner With Floyd Davis in the 500-Mile Indianapolis Race May 30th. Averaged 115.117 Miles per Hour on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires Without a Tire Change or Tire Trouble of Any Kind.

FLASHING down the straightaways at speeds as high as 160 miles an hour, Mauri Rose streaked to victory in the 1941 Indianapolis Sweepstakes without a tire change. 500 miles of grinding, pounding, torturing speed — and not one tire failed! Here's proof of safety — proof of blowout protection — proof of endurance — proof of tire superiority backed not merely by claims, but by PERFORMANCE! For 22 consecutive years all the winning drivers in this great classic of speed and endurance have driven to victory on Firestone Tires. Why? Because race drivers know that their very lives depend upon the safety of their tires. They have made it their business to know how tires are built. And they know that the patented construction features found only in Firestone Tires provide the extra strength and durability necessary to safety and victory!

The same super-safety and dependability that are built into Firestone Tires for the speedway are also built into the new Safti-Sured Firestone DeLuxe Champion Tires for the highway. Both are Safti-Sured against blowouts by the patented Safety-Lock Gum-Dipped cord body. Both are Safti-Sured for longer wear by the exclusive new Vitamic rubber compound. Profit by the experience of famous race drivers. Equip your car today with a set of these new Firestone DeLuxe Champion Tires — the world's first and only tires that are Safti-Sured.

EASY TERMS AS LOW AS 50¢ PER WEEK

Firestone HIGH SPEED TIRES
First Quality—longer mileage—greater blowout protection—greater non-skid safety—less cost per mile. Finest High Speed Tire Firestone has ever built. Equip your car today.

WELL, LET ME CONGRATULATE YOU, FANNY. I UNDERSTAND YOU'RE TO BE THE MOTHER OF A GROWN DAUGHTER
THANKS- I THINK I'LL ENJOY IT-AT LEAST I WON'T HAVE ANY TROUBLE RAISING HER
HOW DO YOU KNOW WHAT SHE'S LIKE? YOU DON'T KNOW WHO HER MOTHER WAS- AND FROM AFRICA! I THINK THAT WOULD GIVE YOU PLENTY CAUSE FOR WORRY
SHE'S STEVE'S DAUGHTER AND STEVE IS RUDY'S BROTHER-THAT'S A TICKET TO THE BEST WE GOT UNDER OUR ROOF
THERE IS STILL NO WORD OF THE S.S. VIRONA AND THE NEBBS ARE ON THE ANXIOUS SEAT.

MICKEY MOUSE— A Social Lion. By Walt Disney

HI Y' CUDDLE-CAT ...WHAT'S NEW?
GUESS WHAT! AN INVITATION TO MRS. VAN ASTOROCK'S SOCIETY BALL! IT'S ALMOST UNBELIEVABLE!
OH, THAT! SURE, I TAKE IN THAT HOP EVERY YEAR! QUITE THE THING, Y' KNOW!
BUT SHE DOESN'T EVEN KNOW ME...I'VE NEVER BEEN INVITED BEFORE! I CAN'T UNDERSTAND IT!
SIMPLE ENOUGH! Y' DIDN'T KNOW ME BEFORE, TOOTS! YOU'RE IN THE SWIM NOW!
OH, MONTY, YOU'RE WONDERFUL!
